Panel warns of dangers in replacing S.S. coverage

Short term gains could be costly in long run

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Committee on Aging says state and local government workers should be given a chance to vote before Social Security coverage is eliminated or is replaced by another plan.

The committee warned Thursday that, whatever the short term gains in take-home pay, the loss of Social Security coverage could be costly in the long run.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee, said in a preface to the committee report that the decision to end Social Security coverage "may be at the cost of losing future retirement, disability, survivor and hospital protection."

The report recommends that state and local governments contemplating termination of Social Security coverage require an independent actuarial evaluation of the replacement plan, and give employes the right to a referendum.

The report estimates that as of June 1975 nearly 8.7 million of the nation's 12.4 million state and local government employes were in jobs covered by Social Security. But as of March 31 this year, some 400,000, including 150,000 in New York City, were under two-year notices of termination.

State and local governments now have the option of covering their employes under Social Security. Coverage is not compulsory because the Constitution prohibits federal taxation of local governments without their consent.

Social Security coverage once terminated can never be provided again for present and future employes of the affected governmental unit.

The staff report said pressure to drop Social Security is often initiated by employes who see a chance to increase take-home pay by reducing their payroll deductions. Also, state and local governments see it as a way to cut costs in the face of a budgetary squeeze.

The report says Social Security, more than just a retirement plan, "is also family security, protecting workers and their families from loss of earnings because of death, retirement or disability. In addition, today's workers are building hospital insurance protection under Medicare for themselves and their spouses."

Before dropping Social Security, the report said workers should determine whether the replacement plans have automatic cost-of-living adjustments, as does Social Security; the likelihood of future improvements; whether coverage will follow the worker from job to job; and whether the benefits would be taxable on retirement.

The committee said government units that planned to end Social Security intended to replace it with one that had generally higher retirement benefits, but usually lower survivor and disability benefits and no prepaid hospital insurance for retired and disabled workers and family members 65 and over.

Workers who are fully insured under Social Security by having the required number of calendar quarters of coverage, depending on age, will remain entitled to some benefits after termination, but the amount will be reduced based on average lifetime earnings under covered employment.

Ford, Carter in debate finale

By Associated Press

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, two presidential candidates in search of a breakthrough to a clear edge in the race for the White House, get their last chance tonight to find that advantage in head-on debate.

Their third and final debate takes place at 6:30 p.m. (PDT) in historic Williamsburg, Va. Afterward, the Republican President and his Democratic challenger leave on campaign trips that will keep them on the road until the election.

Associated Press polls following the first two debates, gave Ford an edge in the first and Carter an almost identical edge in the second.

So, it's one each going into the final match. But no one can be sure what role the debates will have in the final election outcome.

The first debate covered domestic issues and economic policy; the second, foreign policy and defense issues. There is no limitation on the subject matter of the third debate.

A week ago, the vice presidential candidates, Republican Sen. Bob Dole and Democratic Sen. Walter F. Mondale, debated. It was their only scheduled meeting, and it produced generally livelier exchanges than the confrontations between the men at the top of the tickets.

President Ford and Carter spoke at the annual Al Smith Dinner in New York on Thursday night, a charity affair that usually draws the presidential candidates from both major parties.

Carter and Ford timed their appearances so that one was gone before the other arrived.

In an ornate ballroom decorated with thousands of roses, and before an audience heavy with philanthropists and politicians, first Ford and later Carter spoke, each introduced by Terence Cardinal Cooke, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York.

Tradition has it that if the speeches are political, their tone should be lighthearted. And so it was.

Ford took note of the upcoming debate and said, "Gov. Carter is going to answer his questions and I'm going to question my answers." They were references to Ford's frequent campaign charge that Carter refuses to give straight answers during the debates and to the President's own gaffe in the second debate when he said there was "no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

Both candidates may have trouble figuring out where they are during the final 10 days of the campaign. They'll be on the road constantly and if either wonders where he is, a good guess would be that he's in one of the eight most populous states.

. . . TOO CLOSE TO CALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Regardless of how the percentage points in the latest political polls appear to the naked eye, the margin of error built into the surveys makes the race between President Ford and Jimmy Carter now too close to call.

The polls show Carter ahead by 2 to 6 percentage points, but any conclusion from those numbers would be cloudy.

The dean of the pollsters, Dr. George Gallup Sr., agrees — "If you look at the last two to three months, since the conventions, you find the greatest shifting in sentiment we've encountered in 40 years."

"No, you can't predict a winner," he says. "We do know the debates are making a slight difference. And with two candidates as close as they are, events could make a difference — any crisis, any front page event."

Plan triggers angry response

Proposal would make L.A. fair pay rent

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

For the first time since its inception in 1922, The Los Angeles County Fair Association may have to pay rent for the land it uses.

Harry Hufford, the county's chief administrative officer, has written a report to the Board of Supervisors in which he recommends that the county renegotiate its present five-year contract with the fair board so it can get some money from the operation of the fairgrounds.

An aide to Hufford said the county was thinking of an annual lease that would range between $50,000 and $100,000.

The proposal will be brought before the supervisors next Tuesday.

Hufford's proposal brought some angry comments from Phil Shepherd, president of the Pomona based fair board.

Shepherd called the proposal "a lousy deal" and noted that the association and the county signed a five-year rent free operational lease last March. He said no mention of any payments to the county was made at that time.

He pointed out that the fair association is a nonprofit corporation and all proceeds are spent on improvements. He said it costs about $1 million to operate the grounds between the 17-day autumn fairs.

But Hufford, in his letter, pointed out that "everybody except the county is getting something from the operation."

He said the state is getting nearly $900,000 a year in parimutuel betting on the fairground's race track, and that the city of Pomona is collecting nearly $100,000 a year in amusement taxes.

He said that at the end of last year the association had $5.6 million in assets which included $1.2 million in cash.

Hufford said the only money the county is getting from the fair board is $28,000 in taxes on property which is not tax exempt. The rest of the fair grounds is owned by the county and therefore not subject to tax.

Hufford's report was instigated by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

Hufford's report was instigated by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who said the county has been willing until now to pass up revenue from the proceeds of the fair.

"But this year we are in a crunch and we need every cent we can find," he declared. "The state of California and the City of Pomona are doing fine in getting their fair shares, but the County of Los Angeles which owns the grounds is not."

Hufford said the county has a lease with the fair board which runs through 1997. The agreement is renewed every five years, but it has a clause that allows cancellation [illegible] 30-day notice.

Shepherd pointed out that all improvements made by the fair association eventually revert to the county. He said that while it was true that the fair netted the county very little cash, the annual improvement and maintenance of the grounds, done at no cost to the county, was sizable.

He said Supervisor Peter Schabarum, who represents the First District, is an ex officio member of the board and as such "he understands our situation."

Schabarum began a two-week vacation Thursday and was not available for comment.

Hufford's office mentioned the $50,000 to $100,000 rental as an off-the-cuff rental. The aide pointed out that there was nothing definite about that.

"It's up to the supervisors," he explained. "Once the case is given to the board, the rental can go double those figures, or even more. Of course, if the fair association is not making any money, we certainly will not require them to make payments."

Farmers withholding wheat to hike prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers are holding record amounts of wheat off the market, apparently in an effort to force up prices.

The Agriculture Department reported Thursday that on Oct. 1, with wheat prices 30 per cent below a year earlier, farmers were holding 832 million bushels, even more than in the months immediately before the massive grain sales to the Soviet Union in the summer of 1972.

The report on grain inventories, which could indicate higher food prices, came as the Labor Department was reporting this September consumer news:

—Consumers paid slightly less for staple food items, such as bread and most meats, but considerably more for coffee, fresh vegetables and milk.

—Prices of all goods and services, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rose at an annual rate of 4.9 per cent, the first drop in the rate of increase in six months. Over the past 12 months, the index has risen 5.8 per cent, compared with 7 per cent in 1975 and 12.2 per cent in 1974.

Two pilots killed, but youngsters escape injury

Debris from air collision falls among school children

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 100 schoolchildren and their teachers watched in terror from a playground as two airplanes collided and one burst into flames 500 feet above their heads.

"We heard a loud crash and bits of skull, bits of flesh and a couple dozen chunks of the plane came showering down on the kids," said Raymond Roller, principal of the Marina Light and Life Christian School.

Pilots of both planes were killed in Thursday's crash, but no one on the ground was injured. Cause of the accident was under investigation.

"It's incredible no one was hurt," said Roller. "The Lord must have been watching over them with that many kids and that much stuff coming down. A lot of the girls were hysterical."

Teacher Marcia Falcone said she saw "two very distinct bodies falling with their arms and legs twisting. I also saw all kinds of metal showering down and we rushed the children indoors."

The planes, a twin-engine Turbo Commander 690 and a single-engine Beechcraft Debonair, collided over the community of Venice about four miles from Los Angeles International Airport. Wreckage was scattered over a square mile.

Police and firemen said they had difficulty restraining souvenir hunters who flocked to the area after the collision.

"They were carrying off everything from airplane parts to actual pieces of bodies," said one policeman. "You couldn't believe it. We did our best to stop them, but quite a few must have got away with some part or other."

The Federal Aviation Administration said visibility at the time was six miles, with haze and smoke.

Witnesses said the Beechcraft exploded on collision. Pieces fell on homes as the main body of the plane crashed onto a sidewalk.

The twin-engine plane plummeted toward the ground, striking a utility pole and exploding about 15 feet in front of the Los Angeles Police Department's Venice substation, where 300 officers were preparing for a change of shift.

A quarter mile away, Patrolman Richard Ackerman had just driven out of the police station parking lot when he heard a crash and saw the twin-engine plane "headed straight for the police station.

"If it hadn't hit a telephone pole and those trees, just in front of the station, it would have gotten the station for sure. That was damn close."

Albert Pesquiera, 16, was walking out the back door of his home about two blocks from the school.

"As I stepped out the door, I saw this plane crash into my room, and I grabbed a hose and started spraying it," he said. "I was still spraying when I heard a lady across the street screaming and when I ran to her, she said something crashed into her garage.

"At first I thought it was a seat cushion. Then I realized it was a body with no head."

Los Angeles County coroner's investigator Donald Stricklin identified the pilots as Erich Baldwin, 27, of Redondo Beach, and Donald R. Boldt, 44, of Westlake Village, a Los Angeles suburb.

Investigators from the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board rushed to the scene to preserve and study the wreckage.

Brown leaves California to campaign for Carter

Ford will visit state after debate

By DOUG WILLIS
AP Political Writer

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is hitting the campaign trail again today for Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter, and President Ford is heading for California this weekend after his final televised debate with Carter.

Brown's travel schedule for Carter will take him to six states in five days, and it includes two appearances on Monday in Ford's home town, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ford's weekend trip to California Saturday night through Monday morning includes appearancee in Pasadena, San Diego and Fountain Valley in Orange County.

The Republican President also plans to attend church services Sunday at the San Gabriel Mission.

California, with 45 electoral votes at stake, is the focal point of Ford's West Coast trip, which also includes stops Monday in Oregon and Washington state.

In an interview at the White House with editor Don Hoenshell of The Sacramento Union, Ford said "it would be very difficult" for him to win the presidential election without California.

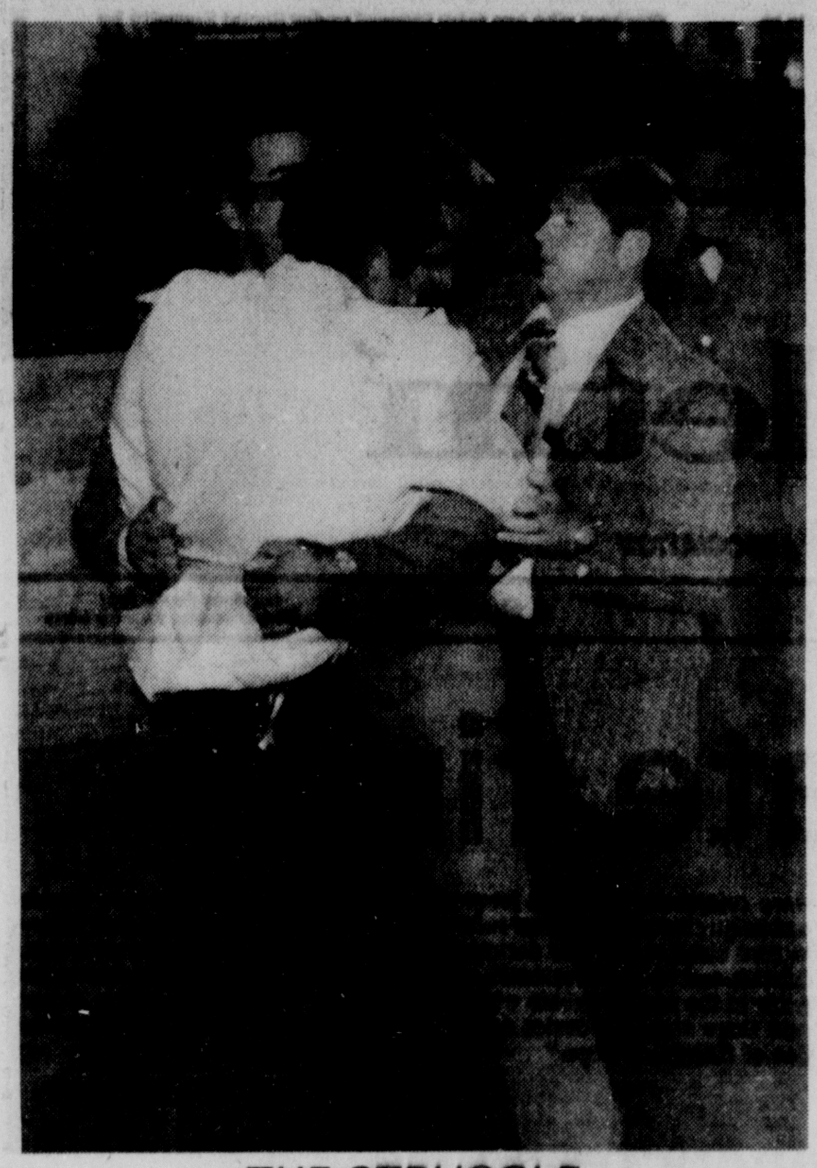
"California is very key. There are a number of other combinations, but California has 45 electoral votes. This means California is a real key state in any realistic combination," Ford said in the interview published in the Union Thursday.

And in a San Francisco appearance, Eugene McCarthy bristled when asked if his write-in campaign for president was making him a spoiler for Carter.

"What am I spoiling?" the former Minnesota senator asked. "The election of Jimmy Carter? Well, that's Carter's problem."

McCarthy, who tried twice for the Democratic nomination for president, failed to collect the nearly 100,000 signatures needed to qualify as an independent candidate for president on the California ballot, but he has been certified as an official write-in, which means write-in votes for him Nov. 2 must be counted.

"If anything, we are spoiling the disposition of some to violate the constitution.... The people are unconstitutionally being denied the right of choice because of state laws and the federal election law," he said.



THE STRUGGLE

Secret Service agents struggle with a man as he tried to enter a suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel Thursday where Betty Ford had stayed two nights, agents said. Steven Barker, facing camera and sandwiched between two agents, was booked for investigation of interfering with a Secret Agent in the performance of his duties. He told agents he had an interview scheduled with Mrs. Ford. He is an audio engineer, but agents said he did not have media credentials.

Commission OKs highway budget

But administration still thinks it's too much

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Highway Commission has added $52.4 million in freeway projects to the 1977-78 highway budget, a move state officials say may cost California federal aid.

The commission's 6-1 vote Thursday approving the budget with the additional projects was the latest development in its lingering dispute with the Brown administration over the highway program.

Transportation director Adriana Gianturco estimated the action could cost the state $220 million in federal funds, and said she didn't know if she had the staff to finish the added work in 1977-78.

"I think we have an obligation to carry out the program but if we do not have adequate staff obviously we cannot do it," she said in an interview near the end of the sometimes heated commission meeting.

The commission and administration have been feuding over the program since commissioners rejected the Department of Transportation's six year plan last month and adopted one of their own.

The commission program included a long list of new construction projects not mentioned in the department plan, and administration officials contended it would outstrip resources by $1.2 billion.

The department then proposed a $985-million, 1977-78 budget based on the first year of its six-year plan, setting the stage for Thursday's confrontation with the commission.

Approval of the budget with the five additional projects came after commissioners agreed not to cut $12 million in repair and rehabilitation projects to help offset the construction increases.

Adding the freeway projects boosted new construction money in the budget from $167 million to $219 million.

But commission chairman William Leonard said the increase would be offset by $18 million if a 6½ per cent inflation factor were used in the budget instead of the 17 per cent factor used by the department.

He contended the department's inflation rate was too high, and said the state would avoid inflated costs by building the five projects in 1977-78 instead of later.

Saxon will put up a fight

UC won't give back federal money

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of California, perhaps taking a lesson from the state's response to its own money requests, says it will fight a federal demand to return $621,000 in grant money.

UC President David Saxon said Thursday the university won't give back the money, which a federal audit claims was allocated improperly, "without kicking and screaming and fighting all the way."

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is expected to show a similar attitude toward the university's proposed 1977-78 budget of $723 million in state aid, an 11.5 per cent increase, that was to go before the UC regents for final approval today.

The regents also were to consider Saxon's proposal for a 6.77 per cent pay increase for UC faculty, and a relinquishing of the veto power over teacher tenure that they assumed after a 1969 controversy over the rehiring of Marxist philosopher Herbert Marcuse.

The dispute over grant money involves an audit by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The audit accused two UC campuses, Davis and San Diego, of juggling federal funds between programs to make sure that all the grant money was spent, even if it wasn't needed in the program for which it was intended.

Saxon said he had no knowledge that any grant money had been spent that wasn't needed. He said UC wasn't being accused of improper spending, and was only involved in an "accounting dispute."

HEW also alleged improper record-keeping for the federal grant money. Saxon conceded that UC probably hasn't documented its grant transactions the way the federal government wants, and said the procedures would be tightened in the future.

But the UC president said the university isn't handling the grants any differently than it had in the past without complaint. He said the federal government had changed its attitude.

"When I was chairman of the physics department at UCLA, we used the same procedures that are used now," Saxon said.

3 still missing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Coast Guard planned to expand today's search for three persons adrift in a life raft without food for 26 days after a shipwreck in the Pacific Ocean.

A Coast Guard spokesman said late Thursday that 15 aircraft would be used today in a search covering 60,000 square miles.

State briefs

Transit plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman says a plan to build a $1 billion rapid transit link between downtown and the San Fernando Valley would be costly and controversial and expressed doubt that it will win federal funds.

Coleman indicated Thursday during a visit here that the rail facility is of low priority among the urban transit projects the U.S. Transportation Department is considering through its Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA).

He was particularly critical of the Southern California Rapid Transit District's failure to commit 20 per cent local matching funds toward UMTA funding.

"Unless there is 20 per cent matching funds, I have no statutory authority to send money — to return some of your money to you," he said.

Tuna fishermen

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fishermen may continue taking yellowfin tuna, even though porpoise may be killed, under a 10-day restraining order issued against the government.

U. S. District Court Judge William Enright issued the order Thursday, just hours before a midnight ban on yellowfin harvesting was to go into effect for the remainder of the year.

Enright also set a Nov. 1 hearing where he'll take further testimony in the battle between the tuna fishing industry and the National Marine Fisheries Service.

A pain killer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A natural opiate produced by the pituitary gland is a far stronger pain killer than morphine and someday may be useful in treating addiction, researchers say.

Choh Hao Li, director of the Hormone Research Laboratory at the University of California here, said Thursday that the first tests on live animals have shown the natural opiate — "beta endorphin" — to be at least 20 to 40 times more effective than morphine when injected directly into the brain and three to four times more effective when injected intravenously.

Dr. Li said continuing research on the substance is revealing other opiate properties, such as its ability to relieve morphine withdrawal symptoms.

New S.B. supervisor to be picked Monday

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors is expected to select a new member Monday afternoon from six finalists picked Thursday.

One of the six will be chosen to replace Daniel D. Mikesell of Ontario who resigned Sept. 28.

The finalists were chosen after interviews with 29 county residents from the western section who applied for appointment to the vacant board seat.

Selected as finalists are Upland City Councilman John E. McCarthy, 57; Gustavo Ramos, 36, executive director of the Upland Housing Authority and former Ontario councilman; Dennis L. Stout, 29, of Alta Loma, administrative services assistant with the San Bernardino County mental health department.

Also Ann L. Ivey, 40, of Rialto, director of nursing for the county health department; Upland Realtor Joseph Kamansky, 62; and John Bratta, 30, Alta Loma teacher.

Today the finalists are participating in a mock board of supervisors meeting. The finalists will be expected to resolve six legislative or administrative issues while the real supervisors watch their performances.

After the mock meeting in the board chamber of the County Clinic Building, the schedule calls for a one-hour exchange of ideas between the finalists and the supervisors.

Dennis L. Hansberger, board chairman, said the board is expected to make the final selection at 2 p.m. Monday.

Clark trial may be given to jury soon

The murder trial in Pomona Superior Court of Cleveland Lyle Clark is expected to go to the jury sometime early next week, court attaches said today.

Clark, 23-year-old Pomona man, is accused of murder in the shotgun slaying of bartender William Hyland, 30, in the Belinda Terrace bar at 480 Pomona Mall West the night of March 8.

The defendant, a former out-patient of the Tri-City Mental Health Clinic in Pomona, has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. If he is ruled guilty of the charge, a second hearing will be required to determine his insanity defense. Several psychiatrists and psychologists have been called as witnesses since Clark himself testified early last week.

Clark is accused of returning to the bar that night and shooting Hyland after Hyland refused to serve him earlier.

Erving trial is scheduled for December

The murder, rape and burglary trial of Albert Erving Jr., 26, has been scheduled for Dec. 13 in Pomona Superior Court.

Erving, of Pomona, is accused in the slaying July 1 of Grace Ella Parent, 88, of Claremont, who was found stabbed to death in her bed that morning.

Erving was arrested several days later. Authorities said he had been released June 22 from prison after having served less than six years for burglary, rape and robbery in an attack on a 67-year-old woman in her Pomona home in 1970.

Miss Parent shared her apartment at 660 W. Bonita Ave. with her sister. It was the sister who discovered the body that morning.

Diamond lanes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State officials are being urged to postpone plans to open a "diamond lane" for car pools and buses on the San Diego Freeway.

Local officials are proposing instead that the new lane — created by rebuilding the freeway's median shoulder — be opened to regular traffic until a final decision is made on the fate of the proposed diamond lane.

He's gone through a lot of trouble to find his son

SAN DIEGO (AP)— Robert Therrian, 50, and disabled, says he's been shot and beaten and has gone through the courts, $30,000, untold government offices and even the underworld to get his small son out of Mexico.

He thinks his son, Ricky, 3, is alive, but in danger. He thinks his daughter, Cindy, 1, may be dead.

"He should have both the children. He won the judgment," said Esther Garcia of the district attorney's office in the Mexican city of Mazatlan. "But we couldn't find the children. When the authorities went to pick them up, the family said the mother and children had gone."

"I know his story. About all I can say is I believe him. His story fits with what I know to be true," said Millard Meek, an Immigration and Naturalization Service investigator at Nogales, Ariz.

Therrian says his ex-wife and her family are holding his son under the threat they will kill the child unless they continue to receive large sums of money.

Therrian has even launched his own raids into Mexico to get the children, or child, back.

Therrian, permanently disabled because of leg and neck wounds from World War II, said he was traveling in Mexico when he met and married his former wife, Antonia, in 1970. They moved to Utah and bought a small ranch and everything was okay at first.

He said the trouble began about a year ago when his wife's family showed up and asked why he had stopped sending them money as he first had. He said the family told him they were taking his wife and the children back to Mexico.

"There were too many of them. I couldn't stop them," he recalled of the struggle.

He said last Christmas he went to Mexico in the hope of mending the marriage and getting his family back. He said he instead was beaten and left for dead.

ROBERT THERRIAN

After four lawyers and numerous trips between the two countries, Therrian said he won custody of the children, which Mexican police tried to take from the family three times. The children couldn't be located.

"I had gone to the good guys. But they had failed. So I went to the underworld," said Therrian. He paid a man in Tucson $2,000 to recover the children. The man disappeared with the money.

Next, he hired two men and took them to Mazatlan. They were beaten and gave up the mission.

Six months ago, Therrian said two men abducted him and drove him into the Arizona desert, where they told him his son would die unless he sent $500 to an address in Mexico.

He said they told him his daughter had been bitten by a rat and died, then shot him in the stomach as a warning they meant business. He shows the scar to prove it.

Therrian said he sent the money for six months. Now, his ranch is gone to pay bills and everything he has left is mortgaged. He has no more money to send, nor any to finance further complicated legal moves.

"I love that little guy so bad," Therrian says of his son. "If I don't get help before Christmas somehow, I'm going back down after him."

Mao's widow hit

Millions rally in Red purge

TOKYO (AP) — China's official news agency today gave the first official confirmation of the appointment of Premier Hua Kuo-feng to succeed Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the Chinese Communist party and of the purge of Mao's widow and three other leaders of the party's radical wing.

Reporting on the huge demonstration in Peking Thursday against Chiang Ching, Mao's widow, and her three radical allies on the party Politburo, the Hsinhua agency said:

"The party central committee headed by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng adopted resolute and decisive measures to crush the counter-revolutionary conspiratorial clique and liquidated a bane inside the party."

The use of the word "liquidated" in the Hsinhua report was not considered an indication that the four had been executed. No political executions are known to have taken place in China in recent years, not even during the stormiest days of the radicals' Great Cultural Revolution in the 1960s.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that the demonstrations continued today for the second day, with military personnel, workers and students marching and beating drums and gongs.

Although wall posters in Peking first reported the promotion of the 57-year-old premier on Oct. 9, Hsinhua's report today was the first by an official organ to refer to him as party chairman. Previous official reports all spoke of the "party central committee headed by Comrade Hua Kuo-feng."

Hsinhua also referred to Hua as chairman of the military commission of the central committee, the other title Mao held.

The agency gave no indication of Hua's successor as premier. Foreign correspondents in Peking have reported that the post is expected to go to Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien, an economics expert considered a moderate.

Some analysts speculated that Hua's elevation had been announced officially in an indirect manner because negotiations are still going on to fill the premiership and other vacant party and government posts.

Hsinhua denounced by name the "gang of four" it said plotted to usurp party and state power — Chiang Ching; Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao; Wang Hung-wen, a party vice chairman; and propaganda specialist Yao Wen-yuan — but did not indicate what was being done with them.

Reports have circulated widely in Peking that they were arrested on Oct. 7, and that more than 25 other leading radicals were also rounded up.

Hsinhua said Chiang Ching and her associates "tampered with Marxism-Leninism-Mao Tse-tung thought" and opposed Mao's line "on a series of domestic and international questions."

MASSIVE RED RALLY

A military unit gives clenched-fist salutes Thursday as it marches along a Peking street as several million Chinese joined in demonstrating against four Communist Party leaders accused of an anti-government plot. Mao Tse-tung's widow was one of the four accused.

Presidency hangs in balance

Tonight's debate may decide vote

LACROSSE, Wis. (AP) — Tonight's final presidential campaign debate will be a major factor in deciding who will win on Nov. 2, claims President Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole.

The Republican vice presidential nominee calls the debate a "playoff" whose significance will be magnified because of the large number of undecided voters.

"It's got to be crucial, I'm going to view it that way myself," said the Kansas senator, who planned to join Ford tonight in Williamsburg, Va., for a brief meeting before the debate.

Earlier this week, Dole joked with reporters that one reason he was going to Williamsburg was that it might be "one last look at the ticket."

"I don't know who's going to win," Dole said Thursday at a news conference in Shreveport, La. "I think President Ford will, but we'll leave that to the determination of the pollsters after the debate."

In Jackson, Miss., he said: "There are going to be 80 million to 100 million people watching. They're going to walk away from their TV sets and somebody is going to get a little edge on momentum.

"It's going to be very crucial any way you look at it."

Dole said that if Ford does well in the debate it would be "enough to put us through.

"The winner of the third debate will be the one who can best communicate with the American people. I don't really think they want a computer that can rattle off the most statistics."

Dole has acknowledged that Ford's performance in the second debate, which included his slip about Eastern Europe, was something less than a stunning performance. In fact, Dole has claimed the debate had a serious negative effect on the GOP campaign, interrupting its momentum.

On his arrival in LaCrosse on Thursday night, Dole rated the ticket's chances in Wisconsin at 50-50.

Campaign officials hastily scheduled Saturday visits by Dole to Hialeah, Fort Myers and Sarasota, Fla., after surveys conducted by the President Ford Committee showed the GOP ticket to be gaining strength in Florida within the past few days.

Nuclear cover-up 'probe' launched

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional specialists will investigate an engineer's charge that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is covering up safety problems in the nation's atomic powered electric plants.

Ronald M. Fluegge, who is leaving the NRC to take a private job, said Thursday that he is concerned about sudden increases in pressure in systems at 16 of 36 plants that are cooled by high-pressure water.

At a separate news conference, NRC officials agreed there have been pressure problems but said there is no reason to shut down the nuclear reactors for repairs, as Fluegge insists should be done.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, directed the panel staff to investigate Fluegge's allegations.

Fluegge said the NRC has found 29 instances when the pressure in 16 of the reactors was inadvertently allowed to go considerably higher than allowed by NRC safety regulations.

He said such "overpressurization" could possibly break open the reactor's pressure container and blow out its water, although this has never happened.

He said it would be difficult to pump in emergency cooling water fast enough to prevent the reactor core from overheating out of control and possibly melting.

If all that happened, he said, the molten core could burn or blast its way out of the reactor building. A break-out could release radioactive elements into the air.

However, Bernard C. Rusche, director of the NRC Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation, said this was unlikely.

Fluegge said it is inevitable that such an incident would burst a reactor's pressure vessel. But Rusche said the pressure vessels are designed and tested to include an adequate safety margin. He said the NRC was collecting proposals from the industry and would decide, perhaps by the end of this year, whether modifications are needed.

In the meantime, Rusche said, the problem presents too little danger to justify shutting down the power plants.

Rusche said the NRC sent a letter on Aug. 13 to the operators of all pressurized water reactors, instructing them to take precautions against overpressurization.

He admitted, however, that overpressure incidents occurred after the letter was sent, at New York's Consolidated Edison Company's Indian Point Unit No. 2 on Sept. 12 and at Unit 3 on Sept. 30.

Press panel selected in 3rd debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tonight is your last chance to score the presidential debates and compare your results with the experts.

When President Ford and Jimmy Carter meet in their third and final debate, The Associated Press' panel of five leading college debate coaches will again be at their television sets to assess just how the candidates perform.

The debate is being broadcast beginning at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

The panel voted Ford the winner of the first debate and Carter the winner of the second, both in split decisions. They picked Sen. Walter Mondale unanimously as the winner of his vice presidential debate with Sen. Bob Dole last week.

The scorecard contains six categories: analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and presentation. Each candidate should be awarded from one to five points in each category.

The five panelists are Dr. Barbara O'Connor of California State University, Sacramento; Dr. Donn Parson of the University of Kansas; Prof. William Southworth of the University of Redlands (Calif.); Prof. James J. Unger of Georgetown University; and Prof. Melissa Maxcy Wade of Emory University, Atlanta.

Ford signs federal land bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - A program that will cost the federal government an estimated $120 million a year will provide increased payments to approximately 1,000 counties that have large blocks of federal land.

The money is intended to compensate counties in 40 states where the federal government has taken substantial land that thereby becomes exempt from local taxes.

President Ford, who initially opposed the measure, signed the bill Thursday. After GOP leaders dropped their opposition to the program, it passed the Senate by voice vote.

The plan will chiefly benefit Western states, where there are thousands of square miles of federally owned grazing land, national parks, forests and reservoirs.

No county could receive more than $1 million a year under the program. The counties will have the choice of taking 75 cents per acre, minus any federal payments under other programs such as timber cutting or mineral leasing, or a flat 10 cents per acre.

The new law excludes Alaskan lands, Indian reservations, wildlife refuges and military bases.

Ford also signed a measure increasing by about $2 billion the U.S. quota in the International Monetary Fund. It also includes reforms in the international monetary system which Ford said "will provide the increased flexibility, resilience and reliance on market mechanisms which today's monetary relationships require."

Forld also signed Immigration and Nationality Act Amendments which apply a 20,000-per country immigration limit to Western Hemisphere nations. It also contains a provision to aid reunification of Mexican-American families by giving preference to Mexican nationals who are close relatives of U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents, and also those who have needed job skills.

Ford cautioned, however, that the legislation cuts in half the current legal immigration level of 40,000 Mexicans. He said he would ask the next Congress to increase Mexican immigration quotas.

Other bills signed by Ford:

—Correct what Ford said were inequities in the Rural Electrification Act. He said the bill will save the government $42 million in unnecessary interest subsidies for fiscal 1977-1981 by changing the eligibility criteria for 2 per cent electric and telephone loans.

—Designate portions of 13 national park areas as wilderness. It covers about 919,268 acres in eight states, including New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, Hawaii, Michigan, California, South Dakota and Virginia.

—Extends unemployment compensation coverage to certain agricultural, domestic service, state and local government workers. It also improves the financing system by increasing the taxable wage base and the tax rate.

—Disallow tax exempt status to social clubs if they discriminate on the basis of race, color or religion. It also allows some tax incentives to promote recycling of waste materials.

SMELLY SITUATION

C. T. Parks strikes a tough stance outside his Apache Junction, Arizona, restaurant as "Karam" and her family relax in the pigpen. Parks is protesting closure of his cafe, which was shut down for violating zoning laws. The property is zoned for agricultural uses.

Spotlight on area crime

Couple robbed on parking lot

A Whittier couple was robbed Thursday night on the parking lot of the Castaway Restaurant at 1600 Ganesha Blvd. in Pomona.

William D. Moller, 41, and his wife, Anita, 33, said they were walking from the restaurant to their car when a man armed with a large hunting knife ran up and demanded money while threatening Mrs. Moller with the knife.

Moller said he was afraid for his wife's safety so he surrendered his wallet to the man. The thief ran to a car waiting nearby and was driven away.

The robber was white, about 30, 5 feet 7 and of medium build. He had a dark complexion and wore a large afro hairdo, tan jacket, white T-shirt and dark trousers.

Repeat robber

Investigators today said they suspect that the man who robbed Bob's Shell service station at 375 W. Bonita Ave. in Claremont late Wednesday night is the same one responsible for several robberies in Pomona.

Shortly after 10 p.m. the man, armed with a .22-caliber pistol, confronted employe James C. Province, 18, in the service station lube room and demanded money. He looted both cash boxes on service islands in the station driveways before fleeing on foot.

The robber was described as black, 20 to 25 years old, 6 feet 3 and slim. He wore a dark, knit cap, black jacket and blue jeans.

A man matching that description was responsible for several robberies recently in Pomona, including one holdup of a restaurant.

State orders dam be built

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state Water Resources Control Board has ordered the Los Angeles Flood control District to construct a dam that will preserve natural streams in Dry Canyon Creek.

The first-of-its-kind decision Thursday is aimed at preventing local districts from allowing stream beds to dry up in the interest of flood control.

The Los Angeles County district had proposed construction of a $1 million project to divert all flows from streams into an underground pipe, thus reducing flood threats during rainy seasons. Environmentalists opposed that plan, saying a dam could be built that would allow water to run normally in the streams during dry seasons and automatically divert the water during potential flood situations.

Diversion of all stream waters would be wasteful and unreasonable, the state board said.

$732,000 awarded for death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — General Motors Corp. and a defunct car dealer have been ordered to pay $732,000 to the family of a man killed when the steering mechanism in his 1971 Buick Electra malfunctioned.

A Superior Court jury ruled Thursday in favor of the relatives of Armando Perez Sedano, who died in an automobile accident in 1973 near Tecate, Mex. His son, Francisco, 13, also died in the wreck.

Sedano's widow, Ana Marie, and their children are to receive $700,000 for his death. In addition Mrs. Sedano was awarded $25,000 for her son's death and another $2,000 in damages stemming from her own injuries in the accident.

The dealer involved was Hartman Buick, which has gone out of business.

Snow warnings at Great Lakes

By The Associated Press

Snow and gale warnings were posted through the Great Lakes region today as an early winter storm moved eastward, dumping more than four inches of snow on parts of the New York snowbelt south of Buffalo.

Strong westerly winds up to 45 miles per hour continued to cause flooding and beach erosion along the Great Lakes.

Morning frost was expected in parts of Mississippi, Louisiana and the Florida Panhandle. Frost or freezing temperatures were also expected in Alabama, Georgia and most of the Carolinas.

Showers and occasional thunderstorms were scattered in the Southwest this morning, from southwest New Mexico through southern California.

Skies were generally fair over the nation, except for the Northwest.

Temperatures dropped below freezing during the night from northern Illinois and northern Missouri into northwest Kansas. And frost was scattered into the Tennessee Valley.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 16 at Craig, Colo., to 71 at Imperial, Calif.

Today's national forecast: rain and snow showers were expected over the northern and eastern Great Lakes region, as well as in northern New England. Showers were expected from southern Arizona into southwest Texas, with cloudy skies from the southern Rockies into the southwest Plains. Cloudy weather was forecast for parts of North Dakota and Washington, with clear or partly cloudy skies elsewhere.

Temperatures were expected to continue quite cool for the season from the Plains to the Atlantic Coast, but near normal in the West.

Women flunk fire exam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite a special training program to help them prepare for the city fire department physical exam, all 15 women who took it flunked.

Nonetheless, Fire Commissioner Dana Senit Henry, who has been pushing to qualify women as fire fighters, said there is still a bright side to the matter.

"It has created abilities for a whole different spectrum of jobs (for women) and pointed up the lack of physical education and training for them," Henry said.

Of a total of 1,328 persons who took the fire department's physical exam over the last two months, 884 have passed.

Support for UNICEF underway

The Pomona Valley Chapter of the United Nations Association now has two projects underway to support UNICEF, the non-political humanitarian agency of the United Nations.

The local chapter is organizing the collection of funds by trick-or-treat participants on Halloween and the selling of holiday greeting cards and gifts.

Coin boxes for Oct. 31 collecting can be obtained from Mrs. Pat Lunde, 890 Hood Drive, Claremont; Mrs. Helen Bashman, 1993 Westwood Ave., Pomona; or Mrs. Gayle King, 1484 Victoria Ave., Upland.

Committee members working on the sale of greeting cards and gifts this holiday season are Mrs. Karen Rosenthal, 1100 Oxford Ave., Mrs. Elizabeth Lowery, 424 Baughman Ave., and Mrs. Anna Tucker, 467 Taylor Drive, all of Claremont. Greeting cards are also available at Renrev Gallery, 232 W. Bonita Ave., Claremont.

UNICEF works in 109 countries with a child population of 884 million.

The arm of the United Nations does not participate in the UN budget but depends entirely on voluntary contributions from governments and individuals.

A major part of its budget is used to equip permanent health, nutrition and educational centers in programs benefitting millions of infants and children.

UNICEF also requires that each partner country itself contribute to its programs. The organization's investments are more than matched by the assisted country's contributions of staff, building materials and funds.

Carroll O'Connor, better known as "Archie Bunker," and his wife, Nancy, are national chairmen of the Halloween UNICEF Day this year.

Charles W. Tryon is president of the Pomona Valley Chapter.

Political arena...

In compliance with a request from National Federation of Republican Women, the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Federated, will participate in a nationwide FORD-DOLE Team Day program Saturday.

Club members will distribute campaign literature in the area and assist the phone bank activity at Republican Headquarters at 175 W. Holt Ave., Pomona.

Joining in this program will be members of the 65th Assembly District, Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee and students from valley schools.

Refreshments will be furnished by Republican women.

The student-faculty forum at Cal Poly Pomona economics department will coordinate a panel discussion on PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES Tuesday from 11 a.m. to noon in Room 101 of the music building.

REP JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., will speak at a Pair Valley Grange potluck supper Oct. 27 at 6 p.m. in the grange hall at 11667 Monte Vista Ave., Chino.

The meeting is open to the public. Lloyd will discuss "Taxes."

LOUIS BRUTOCAO, Republican candidate for the 35th Congressional District seat in the Nov. 2 election, will speak at an Upland Chamber of Commerce breakfast Oct. 28, at 7:30 a.m. at McDonald's Restaurant, 100 E. Foothill Blvd.

He will discuss his impressions of the issues facing the nation.

JIM GONSALVES, Democratic candidate for the open 64th Assembly District seat, has opened a headquarters at 15401 E. Whittier Blvd., Whittier.

Headquarters volunteers will direct attention to volunteer supportive functions and precinct work.

Those wishing to donate time to the Gonsalves campaign may call the headquarters at (213) 943-3713.

SEN. H. L. "BILL" RICHARDSON, R-25th Dist., is the recipient of the Man of the Year Award for 1976 presented by the San Gabriel Valley Arms Collectors.

In making the presentation, group president Harold Ball said, "The gun collectors are both proud and appreciative of Senator Richardson's leadership in thwarting legislative efforts to confiscate handguns."

Richardson authored an amendment to the state constitution which includes the right of citizens to keep and bear arms.

President Ford has signed into law a bill by REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., authorizing a two-year feasibility study on forming a Sheep Mountain Wilderness in the San Bernardino and Angeles National forests.

BETTY WILSON, Democratic candidate in the new 33rd State Senate District, has accused her opponent, Assemblyman Bill Campbell, R-64th Dist., of deceiving voters by "talking tax reform but failing to act on major relief measures introduced in the Assembly this year."

Mrs. Wilson, a member of the Santa Fe City Council, cited a recent Tax Reform Report Card issued by the nonpartisan California Tax Reform Association, which gave Campbell an "F" grade for his votes on tax reform legislation in the 1975-76 session.

"I think it is very interesting that when Campbell is in the district he likes to paint himself as the champion of the taxpayer," said Mrs. Wilson.

"But when he returns to Sacramento, he fails to support tax relief legislation that would relieve the load on our overburdened taxpayers."

According to Mrs. Wilson, the California Tax Reform Association based its grade on 15 pieces of tax legislation introduced in the 1975-76 session.

Playing the sand dunes

DEVILS PLAYGROUND (AP) — A deep boom intruded upon the desert silence, followed by a series of tuba-like "oompahs." Other sounds, like the bark of seals, joined the general din.

It wasn't a military exercise or an aircraft breaking the sound barrier. Jack Hereford was playing the sand dunes again.

Hereford, 70, spent two hours climbing 700 feet to the top of Kelso Dune, then fell to his hands and knees and started the sandslides.

The dune boomed in a deep basso as a large section of sand slid down the slope. The air shook with vibrations from the shock waves.

Hereford has spent the past 12 years seeking the answer to the eerie music emitted by certain sand dunes throughout the world. He heard the booming song the first time when he climbed Kelso Dune, a mass of sand located in the barren expanse of desert about 200 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

"Union Pacific Railroad tracks lie to the north of the dune," he said. "I thought it was a train going by. But there was no train."

Ralph A. Bagnold, a British physicist and an authority on sand dunes, has written that there is "no real explanation of the mechanism by which the sounds are produced."

He has advanced a theory that the noise may be generated by a piezoelectric effect, the generation of electricty in the quartz sand crystals due to mechanical stress.

Hereford, who has recorded the sounds and plans to conduct nighttime tests to see if electrical luminescence can be detected when they are heard, says the shape of the dunes may play an important factor.

Those that emit the loudest noises are blown on one side by winds that mass the sand higher and higher, leaving the slope on one side steep and creating a "slip face."

"The steepness of the slip face must be 32 degrees or awfully close to it for the phenomenon to work," Hereford said.

"There is no end to the mysteries out here," said Hereford, who has spent most of the life in the desert.

TODD N. PARKS, son of Arlene Jones of La Verne and Don C. Parks of Via Verde, has been assigned to Kessler AFB, Miss. for special training in radar navigation after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. Parks graduated from San Dimas High in 1975.

Departing governor a little worried

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Gov. Dan Evans is worried about two things when he leaves office in January after 12 years in the governor's mansion — getting a job and buying a house.

"I have to go to work right away to support my family," said the nation's senior Republican governor. "There will be no sabbatical for us."

Evans, 51, has not owned a house since shortly after being elected in 1964 to the first of an unprecedented three consecutive terms.

"It's going to be frightening to go out and buy a house of our own," he admits. "Other people have been building up an inflation-created equity in their homes for years, and they can turn that in on any new home they buy.

"The home we sold in Seattle sold recently for two and a half times what we sold it for."

Evans was a 39-year-old engineer with a wife and two sons, Danny, 3, and Mark, 1, when he sold his Seattle home and moved into the governor's mansion. Danny is now 15, Mark is 13 and there is a third son, Bruce, 10, who was born while Evans was governor.

Evans said recently he expects to wind up in an administrative job, possibly at a college or university. But there's just one catch for prospective employers.

"I don't want to leave the state. I've had some good offers, but I've had to tell the companies I would accept them only after they moved their corporate headquarters to the state of Washington," he said.

As for credentials, Evans said, "I've got the benefit of spending 12 years running a state, a $3-billion corporation."

His salary was $32,500 a year until 18 months ago, when it rose to $44,000. Despite reimbursements for travel and an allowance for keeping up the mansion, Evans says "a governor seldom breaks even."

Being governor, especially before the mansion was remodeled in 1975, kept him in shape for home maintenance.

Claremont proposes to improve street

The City of Claremont proposes to improve First Street between Claremont Boulevard and Indian Hill Boulevard.

Included in the project is the reconstruction and widening of First Street to four lanes between Claremont Boulevard and College Ave.

Also included is the construction of a landscaped median between the two streets.

The city has requested federal money to finance a portion of the cost of the project.

The proposed improvement will replace a badly deteriorated pavement and will increase the capacity and safety of First Street by adding travel lanes.

A negative declaration has been filed with the city denoting that an environmental impact report is not necessary.

The negative declaration may be examined at the city engineer's office, 207 Harvard Ave., Claremont.

Written comments on the declaration may be mailed to City Engineer Paul Cook.

The public may wish a design hearing on the project and may contact the city engineer's office.

She's 101 and going strong

Birthday celebration held at Hillhaven in Claremont

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

She broke into song as she was wheeled down a hallway at Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital, Claremont, for her 101st birthday party.

Mrs. Emilie Scharles, her hair neatly arranged, surprised a daughter and a granddaughter as she sang a verse of "Where did you get that hat? Where did you get that tie?" on the way to the activity room where a large cake, decorated in the honoree's favorite colors of green and blue awaited her.

At one corner of the cake the baker had placed a miniature rocker and a Victrola.

Mrs. Scharles, long removed from her birthplace of Philadelphia where she was born on Germantown Road Oct. 17, 1975, enjoyed the gaiety of the occasion. Her hearing is sharp, but her eyesight began failing about a year ago.

With the failing eyesight went all the activities which Mrs. Scharles had enjoyed: reading needlework, oil painting, crocheting, knitting, and crossword puzzles, to mention a few.

With Mrs. Scharles on her birthday were her daughter Mrs. Henry Roessler of 1057 Sheridan Ave., Pomona; her granddaughter Joan Godwin of Lancaster; Barbara Geiger of the Visiting Nurses Association, who formed a friendship when Mrs. Scharles broke a shoulder 15 years ago; and Mrs. Marge Scrimger, a nurse at the doctor's office.

Mrs. Roessler explained that her mother enjoys such seafood as raw oysters, shrimp and lobster.

"Her digestion is marvelous. She can eat anything," she said.

Mrs. Scharles received birthday greetings from three other daughters — Anna who lives at Washington, D.C.; Irene of Rohnert Park; and Carola who lives at Alamos, Mexico; four grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

She also received birthday greetings from President and Mrs. Ford and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

As to the coming presidential election, she is said that former Governor Ronald Reagan didn't get the Republican nomination.

Mrs. Scharles recounted how she has traveled all over the nation by plane, bus and train.

She recalled that as a little girl she was taken by her father and mother back to their native Buckholtz in Saxony where she was christened.

A resident of Hillhaven the past seven years, Mrs. Scharles has been marked as a good conversationalist and a good singer.

She has enlivened several Christmas parties at Hillhaven by singing "Silent Night" in German.

As to what does Mrs. Scharles owe her longevity?

"You have to ask the good Lord that question," she responded. "I've never smoked. I've never drank. I've lived a straight life."

Mrs. Scharles said she looks forward each evening to an ounce of rum before dinner.

Mrs. Scharles explained that the ounce of rum, prescribed by her doctor, is for her cold feet.

"In half an hour, she said, "Everything is nice and warm. If I don't get my rum my feet will be cold until the next dawn."

ADD ANOTHER CANDLE

Mrs. Emilie Scharles occupies the center of attention while her daughter Mrs. Henry Roessler of Pomona describes for her a cake marking Mrs. Scharles' 101st birthday anniversary Wednesday. A resident of Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital at Claremont, Mrs. Scharles lived at Summit Lawn, Pa. for 33 years before moving to California in 1950. She received greetings from President Ford and Governor Brown.

Claremont Foothill Assoc. to support propositions A, B

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Correspondent

The Claremont Foothill Association voted Thursday night to support Los Angeles County propositions A and B on the Nov. 2 ballot at a general meeting of the organization at Condit Elementary School in Claremont.

The vote followed a presentation of pros and cons on the county issues by Caroline Beatty of the Claremont League of Women Voters.

Making the fifth of about nine presentations of the issues she will present before election day, Mrs. Beatty told the CFA Proposition A would provide for the election of a county mayor which proponents of the concept claim would add a much needed system of checks and balances to the county government.

The mayor would be eligible for two four-year terms and be responsible for appointing department heads with the approval of the supervisors and submitting a budget. Supervisors would continue to enact ordinances, determine the number of and pay for county employes and approve mayoral appointments.

Mrs. Beatty said the present county charter was enacted in 1913 when there were only 600,000 county residents as opposed to the seven million now in the county. The county government, she said, now has 50 departments.

Finances, she said, are a major difference between supporters and opponents of the measure. Supporters argue that cuts in supervisor's staffs would lead to savings while opponents claim the new mayor's office would be more costly than the present system. Opponents, she said,also fear the establishment of a political machine by the newly elected mayor.

Mrs. Beatty said Proposition B, which provides for an increase in the number of supervisors from five to nine, would not be approved unless Proposition A was approved also. She said the increase in supervisors would change the ratio from the present one supervisor, for every 1,400,000 to one supervisor for every 850,000 residents.

The formation of Canyon County, Proposition F, from the northwest section of Supervisor Baxter Ward's Fifth District was also presented by Mrs. Beatty. She said the last new county formed in California was Imperial County in 1907. A 1975 law, however, has made the formation of new counties easier, she said.

The proposed Canyon County area represents 20 per cent of Los Angeles County's area but only one per cent of its population and revenue, she said. Chief opposition to the measure has come from the county firefighters association which fears a loss of about 190 of its members who may not be employed or may be paid less by the new county government. The firefighters have also claimed, said Mrs. Beatty, that inferior fire protection in the new county could be detrimental to Los Angeles County.

Diane Ring, president of the CFA, pointed out that other opposition has been raised to the secession by those who fear a domino effect throughout the county with other areas, such as the San Gabriel Valley, attempting to leave the county also.

The measure must pass by a simple majority both in the Canyon County area and the remainder of Los Angeles County.

Mrs. Beatty also discussed Proposition C which provides for the county to issue $40 million in general obligation bonds for the development of a county cancer hospital and research institute; Proposition D which would determine if county employe travel and mileage pay should be determined by charter or by ordinance and Proposition E which would allow the county to apply for funds for the construction of 10,000 low-income housing units throughout the county.

Two hurt

Two Upland women were injured Thursday night when two cars collided head-on on Central Avenue south of 11th Street in Upland.

Catherine Dolores Martin, 42, 1533 W. 11th St., driver of one of the vehicles, and Judy Lynn Cates, 35, 1241 Woodmere Drive, the driver of the second car, were transported to San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Both were treated and later released.

California Highway Patrol officers said one of the vehicles crossed the center line and struck the second vehicle head-on.

Flu shots available to seniors beginning Monday

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Flu shots will be available free of charge to persons 60 years of age and over and to those chronically ill between 18 and 59, beginning Monday.

Los Angeles County Health Services will begin its program of immunizations with clinics on Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the eastern part of Los Angeles County.

San Bernardino County will continue a program started on Oct. 15 by offering additional clinics at three West End locations.

A nurse will be on call at the West End Health Center, 1020 W. Sixth St., Ontario, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon on Thursday.

In Chino, the shots are available at the Public Health office in the new County building, 13260 Central Ave., Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to noon.

In Cucamonga, the shots will be given at the public health nurse's office, 9880 Jersey Blvd., from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday through Thursday.

The Pomona Health Center has scheduled six clinics in its service area during the first week of the county's program.

On Monday clinics will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at San Dimas Community Center, 245 E. Bonita Ave., and at the Washington Park Community Center, 865 E. Grand Ave., Pomona.

Clinics on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. will be held at Taylor Hall, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, and at the First Christian Church, 1751 N. Park Ave., Pomona.

The Oct. 29 clinics will also be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and are planned at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 1150 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, and Bell Memorial United Methodist Church, 1745 S. Nogales St., Rowland Heights.

In keeping with the national policy, the primary purpose of the swine influenza program is to provide every eligible individual the convenient opportunity of being protected, according to Dr. Annabel Teberg, Los Angeles County regional medical director.

Phase 1 of the program offers protection to only those 60 years or over and to individuals from 18 to 59 who are chronically ill with heart disease, cancer, diabetes, bronchopulmonary diseases, kidney disease, chronic neuromuscular disorders and diseases affecting the immunity building processes of the body.

Chronically ill children between the ages of 3 and 17 should receive the immunization from their private physician, Dr. Teberg said.

Phase 2 of the program will begin Nov. 1 at mass immunization sites to be announced later and will continue through Dec. 19 offering swine flu immunizations at no cost to the general public.

Women who are pregnant should be considered as having essentially the same need for protection against swine flu as the general public, health officers report.

Persons receiving medical services through prepaid health plans are urged to receive their protection from these sources.

When attending a clinic, persons are asked to wear sleeveless outfits or clothing with sleeves that can easily be rolled up.

The jet injector guns used in Los Angeles County clinics make it possible to vaccinate up to 800 persons per hour, Dr. Teberg said.

The vaccine used in this program is killed virus and one cannot contract the flue as a result of an immunization.

It takes the body approximately two weeks after the vaccine has been administered to develop a sufficient level of protection against swine flu.

People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under medical supervision.

"There is no cure for flu, although antibiotics are important for treating some of the complications of the disease. Vaccination before exposure to the disease is the only way individuals can protect themselves," Dr. Teberg concluded.

Spanish ballot baffles Pomonan

A sample ballot printed in Spanish has left one Pomona voter in the dark.

He is English-speaking Paul Angel, 30, 167 E. La Verne Ave.

"It came Wednesday and it's all in Spanish except the addresses, mine and the polling place. I know that address is the school because I know escuela is Spanish for school."

Other than that, said Angel, his ballot is "solid, 100 per cent Spanish."

He'd like to obtain a sample ballot printed in English so he could study the numerous propositions voters will decide on Nov. 2.

"I've pretty well got my mind made up on the presidential election, and other local offices, but when it comes to those propositions I need help.

"I guess I'll just have to figure them out when I get there on election day," he said.

Ontario pedestrian hurt in bike hit-run

A 74-year-old Ontario Pedestrian was slightly injured Thursday afternoon when struck by a bicyclist who left the scene of the accident in the 300 block of North Euclid Avenue in Ontario.

Lillian Berny of 233 E. El Morado Court, sought her own physician for treatment of her injuries following the 2:21 p.m. accident.

Mrs. Berny told police that a young man riding a 10-speed bike struck her from behind as she was walking east on the sidewalk. She was knocked down and the bicyclist stopped to give her assistance. However, police said, the bicyclist helped the woman up and then rode off southbound on Euclid Avenue.

Police this morning are seeking the bicyclist for questioning in the hit-and-run accident. He was described as being 16 to 19 years of age, medium build, with curly sandy hair wearing a red and white shirt.

Charges dismissed against Claremonter

A charge of assault with a deadly weapon was dismissed against a Claremont man accused in the wounding of his wife early the morning of Oct. 6.

The dismissal was ordered by Pomona Municipal Court Judge James Piatt at a preliminary hearing. During that hearing, the victim, Alberta Page, told Piatt that the shooting was an accident. Mrs. Page suffered an abdominal wound and underwent surgery at County-USC Medical Center.

The incident occurred outside the couple's apartment at 412 S. Indian Hill Blvd. Mrs. Page's husband, Jimmie Lee Page, 28, was arrested by Claremont police sent to investigate the shooting that morning.

35,593 to 24,668—according to report

Democrats outnumber Republicans in area

There are 11,000 more registered Democrats than Republicans in the four cities that comprise the east end of Los Angeles county, according to Leonard Panish, registrar of voters.

Panish released his report 10 days before the Nov. 2 general elections, showing that valley Democrats outnumbered Republicans 35,593 to 24,668 as of Oct. 4.

A marked upswing in the number of registered voters since last June also was reported by the registrar. There are 63,526 persons here eligible to cast ballots in the next election, compared with 58,608 in the June primary.

An aide to Panish attributed the increase to a new countywide policy that went into effect in August which permits residents to register to vote by mail.

Under that policy, persons who want to vote can pick up registration forms at most government offices, may fill them out at home and may mail them to the registrar's office. Until this year, those who wanted to qualify had to be registered by deputized registrars.

Panish said his office has received an unexpectedly large number of such requests during the past two months.

Countywide, there are a total of 3,138,209 persons eligible to vote. Among them are 1,892,970 Democrates, 1,092,522 Republicans, 12,991 American Independents, 8,330 Peace and Freedom members, and 186,238 persons who declined to state their preferences.

A valleywide breakdown shows voter activity in these cities:

POMONA: October total, 31,480. Democrats, 19,231. Republicans, 10,193. June total, 29,963. Democrats 16,919, Republicans, 9,472.

CLAREMONT: October total, 14,570. Democrats, 6,909, Republicans, 6,641. June total, 13,140. Democrats, 6,225, Republicans, 6,118.

SAN DIMAS: October total, 8,785. Democrats, 4,383, Republicans, 3,741. June totals, 7,844. Democrats, 3,927, Republicans, 3,370.

S.D. majority causes unrest

For months we have viewed the state of affairs in the local government process in San Dimas with interest and concern. We believe many of the residents of San Dimas are equally concerned.

Actions by a majority of the city council, Mayor Ersher and Councilmen Wax and Dipple, during the past several months have been disturbing to many people in San Dimas.

These actions include the firing of three planning commissioners, and the terminations of the services of the city attorney and city treasurer. We do not question the authority of the majority to make these changes, only the manner and spirit in which they were accomplished.

We would urge members of the city council to get together, to work more in harmony and with mutual respect for one another. We expect that there will be differences of opinion on issues, but when it comes to decisions, the entire council should act in accord on what will be the best interests of the entire community.

Specifically, we hope that Ersher, Wax and Dipple will re-evaluate their attitudes and take personalities and personal feelings out of their decision-making.

The unrest in the community as a result of a fragmented city council is not in the best interests of San Dimas.

Will democracy die by default?

There is not much point in arguing with people who say they aren't going to vote in the presidential election because neither candidate is deserving, or because it doesn't matter how you vote since nothing ever changes, etc., etc.

This is the way people feel — 70 million of them, according to one survey — and there is little that can be done to crack through the rather self-righteous shell into which they have retreated. Certainly, much of what they say about politics and politicians is true.

But it is one thing to refuse to participate in selecting the man who will lead the nation, and the free world, for the next four years. It is another to throw away the right to vote entirely.

Choosing the president is, after all, merely one decision Americans will be called upon to make on Nov. 2. There will be a host of other questions on every ballot in every community in the nation.

On the national level, of course, all 435 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives and 34 seats in the Senate will be in the balance.

But on the state level, voters will be faced with more than 340 issues of every description — taxes, judicial reform, terms of state officers and salaries, bond issues, industrial development, sexual equality, law enforcement.

Georgians alone will be confronted with no less than 95 "ballots," ranging from a new state constitution to authorizing the General Assembly to create a small claims court in Whitfield County. In Maryland, 19 amendments to the state constitution will be on the ballot.

In Massachusetts, citizens will decide whether or not to make part of their state's constitution an amendment guaranteeing equal rights regardless of sex, and in Colorado the question will be whether or not to keep that state's 1972 equal rights amendment.

Also in Colorado, voters will be asked, as they were in California earlier this year, to weigh a proposal — Proposition 3 — which could determine the future of nuclear energy in their state.

The same is true in five other states. In Ohio, it's Issue 6; in Oregon, Proposition 9; in Washington, Initiative 325; in Montana, Proposition 71, and in Arizona, Proposition 200.

All of these proposals are characterized by their opponents as "anti-nuclear." By placing unrealistic restrictions on nuclear power plants, it is warned, they would foreclose the orderly development of this form of energy. Their advocates, of course, argue just the opposite.

Surely, questions like this ought to arouse the intense concern of every citizen. They can hardly be dismissed as a matter of Tweedledum versus Tweedledee.

Actually, however, therein may lie a clue as to why there is so much voter apathy. Bombarded by propaganda from all sides, not only on the question of nuclear energy but everything else, the average person is often unsure and bewildered.

Moreover, it is frustrating and irritating to be confronted with a lengthy ballot and to realize that you haven't done your homework and know absolutely nothing about some of the candidates for a multitude of offices. Even more annoying are complicated proposals presented in such obtuse language that frequently a vote for is actually a vote against.

What should one do when in doubt? Leave the box blank? Make a hopeful guess? Or stay home in the first place?

For better or worse, this is the way it has always been in a democracy and this is the way it will be until enough people, because of their unwillingness to do the hard work demanded of good citizenship, allow democracy to die by default.

The public forum

Pet disposition clarified

Dear Editor:

I would appreciate the opportunity to respond to the Public Forum letter released in your paper on Oct. 17 titled "Protests new pet policy." The letter questioned the reasoning as to why the Humane Society of Pomona Valley and the Pomona City Council authorized reducing the time period the society must hold stray impounded dogs from 72 hours to 48 hours before the society may decide the disposition of unclaimed dogs.

Had the author of the letter, Alice A. Grant from Los Angeles, researched the issue she would have realized that she had no grounds to write such a letter. She presumably did all her fact finding from a news article someone had sent her. Here are the facts:

The city of Pomona requires the Humane Society to hold all stray impounded dogs for a period of 48 hours before disposition. This time period does not include the day we picked up the animal, Sundays, Holidays or for dogs wearing a current license tag. Licensed dogs are held for 10 days before placement for adoption. We intend to exercise the 48 hour limit only when overcrowded conditions warrant it. Furthermore, it will be carried out on a select basis, taking into consideration probability of being redeemed if held longer, chance of being adopted, age, disposition and health. Alternatives to the new law would be to allow the dogs to roam the streets until we can provide space in our shelter or to overcrowd the kennels. I can't assume that any thinking person would select the latter two.

Ninety per cent of all unclaimed dogs are placed in our adoption ward, hopefully that someone will consider taking them to a new home. The law does not change the holding period for cats and only affects Pomona.

The public should know that of every 20 dogs impounded only two are redeemed by their owners. Of every two-hundred cats received at our shelter only three are redeemed. This leaves the burden of expense and disposition solely upon the society and without the aid of tax dollar support. We don't know how much longer we can keep this up.

The author's letter goes on to say that the society has not increased its shelter facilities to hold animals since we first opened our doors in 1950. Had she done her homework, she would have found out that in 1968 we more than doubled our animal holding facilities and all without the aid of tax dollars. However, the solution to the entire issue of surplus dogs and cats, stray animals and animal abuse, is not to be found in constructing more animal shelters, adding onto those already built or higher dog license fees, but rather in developing spay and neutering pet programs under veterinary control, increased teaching of humane education in the proper care of all animals and effective enforcement of animal control regulations.

Taxpayers sweeten gamblers' pots

WASHINGTON — Gambling is the nation's most lucrative business, with a staggering $67 billion annual turnover, the largest source of revenue for organized crime. Yet last year, the Treasury Dept. didn't start a tax audit on a single gambler.

It permitted literally hundreds of millions in gambling taxes to go unpaid. The honest taxpayers, of course, were required to make up the difference.

The gambling tax laws weren't enforced last year, turns out, because of bureaucratic buck passing. Two of the Treasury's enforcement agencies, the Internal Revenue Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, waited all year for each other to do the investigative work.

The snafu developed in December, 1974. Previously, the IRS had the responsibility to see that gamblers paid their wagering taxes. The law requires professional gamblers to buy a $500 occupational tax stamp each year and to pay a 2 per cent excise tax on their take.

But IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander, curiously, wanted to shift the responsibility to ATF, which has no tax specialists. This was opposed by the IRS intelligence director, John Olzewski, whose agents have the skills to nail the tax-evading gamblers.

Then in late December, 1974, Olzewski took a vacation. While he was gone, Alexander signed a memo authorizing the transfer. He also persuaded Treasury Secretary William Simon to make it official.

That ended the enforcement of the gambling tax laws for the next year. The Justice Dept. got 900 gambling convictions in 1975. State and local authorities made another 13,000 arrests, more or less. Almost all the convicted gamblers owed back taxes.

The Justice Dept. routinely forwarded the cases to the IRS for tax assessment. But the IRS ignored them all last year. Alexander claimed that ATF had the responsibility to investigate the failure of these gamblers to pay their wagering taxes.

Justice complained bitterly that the IRS wasn't cooperating. An internal Justice memo charged that the IRS wasn't even bothering to keep statistics on strike force gambling cases.

Finally, Rep. Charles Vanik, D.-Ohio, who heads the House IRS oversight subcommittee, brought the problem to Simon's attention. The Treasury Secretary immediately ordered the IRS to continue their tax assessment responsibility for 1976.

Some shocking statistics dramatize, meanwhile, how the gamblers are defying the law. The definition of a gambler is somewhat vague under the law. But with certain exceptions, anyone who earns more than $500 a year from gambling is supposed to pay the special gambling taxes.

Yet across the nation, only 1,297 gamblers have purchased their federal occupational stamp. If these figures are to be believed, there are only three professional gamblers in New York, only three in Florida. There are none at all in Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Hawaii and New Jersey. Even the gambling state of Nevada has only 120 registered gamblers.

Clearly, there are wholesale violations. IRS now has the responsibility for tax assessment. ATF still is supposed to take the criminal cases. Neither agency is doing its job. They blame one another, and both blame the Treasury Dept.

Meanwhile, the IRS has been hounding honest citizens for back taxes while the gamblers escaped enforcement and hundreds of millions of dollars slipped through the Treasury's fingers.

Footnote: It is possible that the IRS audited the taxes of some gamblers last year as part of its income tax audits. There were no audits, however, of gambling tax cases. The voluntary revenue from gambling taxes for the first nine months of 1975, incidentally, amounted to an insignificant tax rate of less than 1 per cent.

AID TO SMUGGLERS: Reports have reached Washington that Thailand's military brass have provided helicopters from the United States to rescue wounded drug smugglers.

The smugglers have been wounded in the opium skirmishes in the "Golden Triangle," the remote, rugged mountainous area of Burma, Thailand and Laos where the opium armies hide out. For 30 years, they have been fighting miniwars negotiating treaties and financing their opium operations like sovereign states.

Our man in Washington

The campaign deteriorates

By TERRY WADE

WASHINGTON — In February Jimmy Carter thought the American people were "embarrassed" by it. He said we were sick and tired of it and didn't want to hear any more about it.

That was Jimmy Carter in Wisconsin before he became the Democratic presidential nominee.

The same Jimmy Carter said he hoped his running mate wouldn't continue to make an issue of it, after Walter Mondale, the senator he chose to run with him, mentioned it in his acceptance speech last July.

That was Jimmy Carter with a 40 point lead in almost every poll.

There is a different Carter being projected now. A Carter who suddenly thinks the American people either aren't tired of hearing about Watergate or that the only voters embarrassed about Watergate are the Republican voters.

There was a hint of possible things to come even as early as Carter's own acceptance speech in New York.

"It's time for our government leaders to respect the law no less than the humblest citizen . . ." Carter said.

Who could vote against that? The concept is perfect, but the implication plainly had to be that the present administration isn't. Does that smell Watergatish?

Still there was hope that we would have a campaign based on the issues, current issues, not the problems of the Nixon Administration.

That was not to be, however. The campaign has deteriorated, but it takes two to tango as they say and President Ford hasn't been without shame.

How could he stand before a national audience during his last pressconference and profess to want a campaign at the "level of the American people" and then turn around and accuse Carter of "slandering" the country.

Maybe that is the level of the American people, but I don't think that's what Ford meant.

Still, the Carter shift from Watergate as no issue to Watergate as the issue is most interesting.

We should have known all along that Watergate was the Georgian's ace-in-the-hole. Why else would he have Mondale keep it warm during the early parts of the campaign?

A sign of Carter's shift to Watergate came Oct. 1 when he told an audience, ". . . many of our people had simply given up because of the disgrace of the Nixon Administration." Thus linking Ford, Nixon and Watergate.

Watergate must have no longer been an "embarrassment," the people want to forget shortly after that because Carter came full circle by claiming Ford has "hidden himself from the public even more than Richard Nixon did at the height of Watergate." Very interesting!

Just in jest

Folks who are complaining these days about living a dog's life should be so lucky. — In the first place, American pet owners are now spending hundreds of thousands of dollars a year on diet foods for their overweight dogs.

But who is picking up the tab for the expensive reducing programs we chubby human beings are forever trying out? — And thus far, unfortunately, while scientists have perfected a dog food that contains birth control ingredients, the best thing they have been able to come up with for people is the pill.

—However, that newly developed additive for canine food may be a blessing in disguise for some of the members of our human society who, because of unfortunate financial straits, are reported to be eating dog food. Who knows? In the never ending battle to curb the population explosion, dogs may once again prove to be man's best friend.

Dole inspires handicapped

WITH THE DOLE CAMPAIGN — (NEA) — It was only a brief moment in Robert Dole's exhausting bid for the vice presidency. But it was nice. The candidate was in Newark, N.J., riding in a parade, when some men in the street hoisted a large poster crawing of a twisted hand which contained this crude but tender inscription:

"A four-letter word for Bob Dole is Guts!"

It may have been the most nonpartisan tribute of this electric season. Each of the principal candidates has admirable qualities, for example each of them is a small-town American with quite humble beginnings, but the junior senator from Kansas is also something of a spiritual inspiration. He is a handicapped citizen, crippled if you will, and one does not have to be Republican to appreciate his courage.

The story of his disability is by now familiar to those who have followed the news of the hustings. When he was 21, and a World War II infantryman in Italy, Dole led a charge against an angry German machine-gun emplacement. So doing, he received shell fragments in the shoulder and several cracked vertebrae. He spent 39 months in repair, much of it wrapped in a cast from neck to trunk.

His right arm is now only slightly withered, but virtually useless. He can use the elbow as a paperweight, and the curled hand to hold light objects. Otherwise, he has one arm, and therefore must spend 30 minutes to an hour getting dressed, must ask for assistance in some of his dining habits, and must endlessly guard against the exuberant voter who tries to grab him for a well-meaning but painful handshake.

Three decades after receiving his wounds, Dole still suffers from pain. Not terribly, he says, but occasionally. He thinks it's a matter of improper circulation. For instance he feels cold weather more than he'd like. Aides say he must sometimes take mild painkillers.

Beyond these brief comments, neither Dole nor his staff talk at length about the disability. Apparently they do not want to appear be to milking sympathy. Dole occasionally makes light of the injury, telling once that he hoped to be vice president because it is an inside job with no heavy lifting; otherwise, as he should, he minimizes the problem, perhaps thankful, considering war, that it is no worse.

And yet throughout his eight years in Congress, and also during his campaign, he has hoped others in similar circumstances might benefit from his example. During the Republican convention he conspicuously used a sign-language translator during his podium remarks. Last month he showed up at a Miss Wheelchair American pageant. And he has told leading physical rehabilitation officials, politics notwithstanding, to "use me this election, use me any way you can."

Such use could be considerable, particularly if Dole wins in November. Milton Kahn, director of the Federation of Handicapped (New York), reminds that when Franklin Roosevelt served as president from a wheelchair, his influence on rehabilitation services was immeasurable. He inspired the March of Dimes campaign against polio, for one thing, leading to medical research and immunization.

It is unarguably a bit unfortunate that the one in 11 Americans who have some kind of disability must wait for a high leader to popularize their problems, but at this things are better than they once were for the handicapped. In Caesar's day the crippled were thrown over cliffs. Native Americans often left the deformed behind on the trail. And even now the "village idiots" of Anyplace, U.S.A., may be cripples who with early help might have lived wholly better lives.

So this is why Bob Dole is inspirational. He reminds us that with help and fortitude the handicapped are not so sad as neglect would have it. Once, as he has said, "My primary interest was how well I could do on a basketball floor (and) whether I could catch a football." Then he was injured and his friends helped him to overcome his loss. "I learned to understand that I was very fortunate. It's ability that counts, not disability. It's how we act and perform."

Right you are Bob Dole. The poster in Newark said it all.

Dr. Miller

What's a diet for crickets?

DEAR DR. MILLER: Singing crickets really turn me on. I'm going to keep some as pets. What's a really good diet for them that would be no work? — L.I.

DEAR L.I.: Crickets should happily sing for their supper if it's ground-up dog food. A side dish of a wet sponge or cotton would be a suitable beverage container.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've been waiting patiently all summer for my cat's skin to get better. It's still getting worse. Why is this? Last year it was getting better by now. — O.F.

DEAR O.F.: Summer is sore skin season, but fall isn't far behind, particularly in neglected cases. In some sections of the country, the flea population may still be at near-peak levels and flea bite dermatitis, for example, may be a common, possibly serious, problem. A pet who suffers yearly from this tends to develop it earlier and keep it later each successive year, until eventually, if improperly treated, the skin condition continues ever more severly on a year-round basis. Some owners are surprisingly "patient" where their animal's skin problem is concerned. They wouldn't be if their own skin were similarly affected. You shouldn't be any longer. Get your poor pussycat in to the doctor for help.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I left for work one morning, my budgie, Frisbee, was loose in the apartment as usual. No problem. When I came home that night, he couldn't fly but could walk, though not in a straight line. He was very uncoordinated. I'd swear he was drunk, but I checked my liquor supply and he hadn't been in it. No way he could get to it. That night, he appeared to be sleeping it off, but the next day he still had a bad hangover. I left him in his cage, and that night when I came home, he was dead. I checked again. There was no way he could have gotten anything alcoholic, and yet what else could it have been? — O.R.

DEAR O.R.: Frisbee's death could be attributed to anything from fumes to pilot error. Chemical fumes or a gas leak probably would have been detected while you were searching for an alcoholic answer. More likely, his lack of coordination was due to brain injury from an aerial accident. There are other possibilities, of course, but for future reference, a flight cage is a far safer parakeet playground, albeit less interesting, than is an entire apartment.

Ann Landers

With safety pins and glue

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are retired, in our mid-60s. For various reasons we have not "lived together" in the real sense for 20 years. We each have heavy grievances against the other, but two attempts at divorce fell through because of health problems and social pressure. So we continue to share the same house.

My question: How many marriages end up this way? I'll bet the percentage is high, especially in the older age bracket. How do these people cope with the situation, which at times becomes very depressing? — Seeking Answers

Dear Seeking: I can't give you any figures on the number of couples whose marriages are hanging together with safety pins and Elmer's glue, but I CAN tell you there are more poor marriages around than good ones — by a long shot. Especially after ten years.

How do they cope? You, dear lady, are IN such a marriage. How do YOU do it? My guess is — with great difficulty.

Dear Ann Landers: Since your column is an educational source for a great many people, I'd like to pass on some useful information out of my own experience.

Several days ago my car was stolen. The details of where and how are not important, but the aftermath caused me considerable anxiety. I hope I can spare others what I went through.

Unthinkingly, I left my house keys in the glove compartment. On the key ring was my identification card, complete with address. Also in the glove compartment was a map, showing friends how to get to our home. (We live in the suburbs.)

The car was recovered after three days but the house keys and map were missing. The cost and nuisance of changing the locks was minimal compared with the mental anguish of knowing that some car thief knew where we lived and had the keys to our home for three days. Warn your readers, Ann. — Barricaded in Wilmette

Dear Will: You warned them — and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: Something is bothering me. It seems whenever I pick up your column some teenage girl is having a second child out of wedlock. My 20-year-old daughter can't even get a date.

Rosalie isn't beautiful but she certainly is presentable. She has a slight weight problem but you wouldn't call her fat. She is healthy-looking, and a lot more attractive than the models with their hip bones sticking out and their middles caved in like they have TB or something.

It just breaks my heart to see this lovely, intelligent girl sitting home night after night or going to the movies with the girls at the shop where she works. How can I help her make a social life? — Mother With A Heartache

Dear Mother: I know of no way a mother can create a social life for her 20-year-old daughter. Rosalie will have to do it herself — if she is interested.

I recommend weekend vacations away from home where single people go, political clubs, night-school classes — in other words, outside exposure. She'll never catch a muskie if she keeps fishing in a herring barrel.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reporting on weather reports

One of the mundane chores that are regularly laid upon the new reporter on daily newspapers is "doing the weather," writing the weather data and prognostications for the day. He calls the National Weather Service or the local bureau and dutifully records wind, rain, high and low temperatures and time of sunrise, sunset, swiftly pass the years. It's a drag — and the most read item in the entire newspaper.

Having served my time as a cub reporter saddled with "the weather" in bygone days, I was fascinated — or interested — well, bored stiff, in fact, to hear about the weather reports from Mars, where we now have two little Viking spies busily recording everything that transpires on the Red Planet. You know what? Nothing, that's what. For this we spent $3.8 billion?

The mind-boggling technological expertise that went into shooting off our three-legged laboratories has come up empty again. First no life, now no weather. On to Venus!

The temperatures recorded by our two little Vikings, there's dears, range from -115 Fahrenheit at night to a toasty -20 at high noon. No wonder there's no life on Mars! But the range is always the same, and during a season there is little wind, no falling leaves, no snow, no spring flowers, no groundhog, no Howard Cosell. The routine would be a snap for a Martian cub reporter — just use what ran yesterday.

Many residents of these (other) United States jeer at Californians because THEY have no weather either. Summertime the year round with a few chilly evenings to make a cozy fire welcome and a little rain now and then to keep the lawns green. But not what you would call weather. One friend calls me up from Iowa when that state's sky is blue, the sun warm, the leaves turning. "I'd hate to live in a place that didn't have a change of seasons!" he hoots (collect).

I always return the call just after USC or UCLA has routed a Big 10 team in the Rose Bowl where 100,000 shirt-sleeved spectators have been getting sunburned all afternoon. My friend can't see out of his ice-glazed windows, which is just as well, because all he'd see would be grey skies, icy roads and swirling snow. I'd rather live on Mars.

I say, "Hold it, Eddie, I can't hear you. Wait'll I turn down the air-conditioner." Or I yell (aside) "you kids quit that splashing or you'll have to get out of the pool." I have a tape-recording of a power mower at work that I turn on in the background when he calls at Christmas.

Man and boy I have lived all over this great nation of ours, from the fog-shouded coast of Maine to the rainswept hills of Washington, from the icy streets of Chicago to the shoe-rotting humidity of New Orleans, and I happily give over "the change of seasons" to hardier (and foolhardier) souls. Sure I miss the autumn tang, but I don't have to cope with blankets of snow on driveway and sidewalk. Brrr! Dead batteries, chains, pneumonia and heating bills like the national debt.

If Mars were a teeny bit warmer, it would be my kind of planet — no rain, snow, wind, changing temperatures. On Mars nobody talks about the weather because there isn't any.

Dr. Lamb

Spot reducing? — no chance

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on getting rid of fat in certain areas of the body. I read that when you lose weight or fat, you lose it over your entire body. The weight I gain seems to settle in my hips and seat.

I'm not overweight, I just need rearranging. How do I get rid of fat in one place and stay the same or not get skinny in the other areas that are dust fine?

Also, could you tell me what exercises are good to flatten the derriere?

DEAR READER — I've got news for you. You are overweight. There is no such thing as spot reducing. You have to be on a general weight reduction program to get rid of fat even if you seem skinny in some areas, such as the face.

You have two problems, loss of muscle mass in the face, neck, arms and gain of fat below the chest. The way you go about rearranging yourself is to recognize you have two problems, not just one.

It is a perverse aspect of nature that causes us to lose fat in our face first and last in the abdomen and hips area. A good program is to do exercises to build up muscles in the skinny places and be on an exercise diet program to lose calories and get rid of the unwanted fat deposits.

Do isometric exercises for your face. That means contracting each group of facial muscles that you can identify several times each morning — between three and ten times is enough for each group.

Also do exercises that use your arms and chest muscles. Push-ups, pull-ups and windmill exercises are all good. Be sure to use exercises that help pull your shoulders back to maintain good posture for you. These are movements of the arms in a backward fashion as you do if you are swimming the backstroke.

You can help tone up sagging muscles in the abdomen with sit-ups and you can tone up that "derriere" with old fashioned bumps and grinds.

To help you in your rearranging program I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding The Big Middle.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I recently read an article in a well known magazine about skin care. It said that lack of vitamin A can cause such skin diseases as psoriasis or even cancer. I would like to know if this is true, if taking vitamin A orally would relieve psoriasis.

DEAR READER — I am appalled. Vitamin A deficiencies can cause skin problems but such a deficiency will not cause either psoriasis or skin cancer. And they are not the same thing.

If you have quoted the article correctly it is one more example why people should be careful about getting health information in articles not written by doctors. Many so called health magazines are the source of much of the health misinformation and folklore that people read.

Taking large doses of vitamin A on your own can also lead to vitamin A toxicity. Such misinformation can really be harmful to people.

Don't borrow any fears

The controversial French author, Colette, wrote an autobiography. After reading it, a friend commented, "You know, Colette, I noticed that when you were in your late teenage years and early twenties, you seemed to be so happy."

"Yes, I was," she answered, "it's too bad I didn't realize it at the time."

Isn't the same true for most of us as we look back upon some of our years? We were so happy then. Why didn't we enjoy it more at the time? The answer is, we were busy borrowing tomorrow's fears, worries and anxieties!

All you have is today! Enjoy it! Today is filled with love. Look for it! Today is filled with beauty! See it! There are flowers blooming! There are children playing! enjoy the present moment. Don't allow tomorrow's fears to blot out joy!

The origin of 'Root of Evil'

Client asks our Language man for the origin of that phrase so frequently used in sermons: "The root of evil." In its entirety, the adage reads: "Concern yourself with the root of evil and not with the cry of pain." Its author: Confucius, the latinized name of K'ung Tu-tsu meaning "Master K'ung." Was in 1687 at Paris that Roman Catholic missionaries first published for the western world the wise words of Confucius.

Young lady, assuming you're exactly 21 years 6 months old today, you'll get married before sundown, if average. Five years ago, the average bride was a year younger. Why these girls have started putting off the nuptials for an additional 12 months of late is a mystery.

Q. "Don't some people believe that Adam had another wife before Eve?"

A. In Hebrew folklore, Adam's earlier wife was Lilth, later conceived as a demon who stole children.

Q. "How did the custom of kissing a woman's hand originate?"

A. Footnotes in French literature indicate it was perfectly natural because the hand was the easiest place to start.

Q. "Where do most pistachio nuts come from?"

A. Iran.

If you are old enough to remember World War II, you've heard of the shrapnel shell. But do you know why it was so called? The inventor was British General Henry Shrapnel.

THE BURRITO

Writes a client: "You said a Mexican-American woman created the first burrito, chopped meat wrapped in tortilla, when she had to improvise after running out of wieners at her hotdog stand in Los Angeles. Correct. More specifically, she is my mother, Victoria Rico Arroyo de Sepulveda. In 1935, it was, at 3508 E. First St. in East L.A." Signed, Bernardo C. Sepulveda.

Among the 355 children of August II, 1670-1733, king of Poland and Saxony, was one and only one legitimate son, eventually to succeed to the throne as August III. That father of renown, as so many rulers in those days, was known by a nickname: "The Strong."

Like wine, perfume tends to change once the bottle is opened. That's one reason the perfume authorities suggest you only buy small bottles of scent and use them up quickly. The other reason is that way they can sell more.

Casa Colina receives a prize-winner

Casa Colina Hospital in Pomona has been given a prize-winning steer and will use it as a fund-raising project.

The Swiss Simmental steer was raised by Kim Cook, a student at Cal State Fresno, and won first prize in the junior livestock judging at the Los Angeles County Fair last month.

Richard Kruse of the O. H. Kruse Grain and Milling Co. of El Monte and Ontario paid $2.90 per pound for the 1,132 pound prize animal, making its total value $3,282.80.

Kruse donated the steer to the hospital. It has been butchered, prepared and stored at the Arrow Meat Co. in Upland.

Proceeds from the distribution of the meat will go to the Children's Services Center Building Fund. Ground breaking for the new center is scheduled early in November. The building is expected to be completed by next March.

Persons interested in a half of beef, a hindquarter or a forequarter may call Casa Colina, 593-7521, ext. 237, for information.

Junior Blind is appealing for support

The Foundation for the Junior Blind is making a Thanksgiving appeal for funds to support its recreational and educational programs for blind or partially sighted children.

The mail appeal for funds is to help support 10 major programs, according to Norman Kaplan, executive director.

Called "Give Thanks for Your Sight," the fund drive will help train the fingers of over 700 South and youngsters who participate in programs at the foundation center in Los Angeles.

The children participate in weekly recreation programs and in a number of training classes where they are taught to "read" Braille with their fingers, learn how to safely do household chores and practice skills which will eventually help them make a living in the business world.

General Telephone preps employes for retirement

When management employes at General Telephone Co. become 52 years of age, they are invited to learn how to prepare for retirement — before it's too late. The utility has become a leader in preparing employees for retirement and recently lowered the minimum age for its course on retirement planning from 55 to 52.

Eight hundred employees between the ages of 55 and 65 have passed through the company's retirement planning seminar since April, 1975, when the program began. Before the end of this year, another 200 will have completed the course.

"The greater the number of years of planning, the greater the retirement," says Hal Elliott, personnel development assistant. The program is based on a retirement series developed by the Action for Independent Maturity division of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The seminar is not designed to encourage General's employes to retire early. Some of those who have completed the series, however, have indicated they now plan an early retirement. Having heard of General's success with the series, other companies and organizations have requested assistance from the company. These include Rand Corp. in Santa Monica, Continental Airlines, Marin County employees, the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce, the department of communications of the County of Los Angeles and St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica.

According to Elliott, those who have attended the seminars don't dread retirement anymore. "They feel it's a beginning, rather than an ending."

The eight-week program includes a two-hour meeting weekly with outside authorities in various fields talking with participants. Spouses of employees may attend, with entry into the series voluntary and some outside reading required.

Topics include health, safety, housing, legal affairs, role adjustments, use to time, sources of income and financial planning.

"We have learned that if retirees are not prepared to keep active, they usually aren't around at all within a couple of years after retiring," says Elliott. "They key to a happy retirement is keeping active in meaningful endeavors. This means not just putting in time, but getting something back from it," he said.

The program has had notable results. Several participants have decided to prepare themselves for a second career after retirement. For example, one plans to be a piano tuner. Another will sell items she makes herself in a small business. Still another plans to become a travel agent. And some express an interest in writing.

"It isn't unusual for people to decide to go back to junior college or to take extension courses at universities such as UCLA," Elliott said.

He also believes that concern will grow throughout the country among businesses who want their employees to be able to enjoy the retirement for which they worked so long.

"People get enthused when they discover there is something out there for everyone to do," said Elliott. "We like to share the slogan: "Work is earning to live, while retirement is learning to live."

Snowy, but not cold

What folklore predicts for the coming winter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — If you can believe the woolly bear caterpillar, wild geese, and persimmon seeds, the coming winter will be snowy but not very cold, a folklore expert says.

Nevyle Shackelford said he's looked in vain for traditional signs of a hard winter, including dark wide bands on the caterpillar, large flocks of geese flying south, and squirrels scurrying to store nuts.

And you can be sure there'll be a lot of snow because it was foggy during many mornings last August, added Shackelford, who has written about folklore and native wildlife for University of Kentucky agricultural publications.

Shackelford, of Beatyville in south-central Kentucky, said he's seen "several woolly bears, and they just had a little black on each end of them. And I've seen two or three that didn't have any stripe on them at all."

As far as squirrels and other wildlife, he said he's detected no unusual activity, "which is a pretty good indication to me that at least the first part of the winter is going to be mild.

"I usually see jays and woodpeckers and ground squirrels and grey squirrels just working up a storm storing up walnuts and acorns, but they haven't done that this year," Shackelford noted.

Furthermore, he's heard no reliable reports of any wild geese going overhead. "Somebody in Lexington said they had heard two gangs, but I believe they may have heard automobile horns," Shackelford said.

Shackelford said another means of predicting the likely snowfall is opening a persimmon seed to see the shape of the "germ." If it's spoonshaped, Kentucky lore says, there will be plenty of snow; if it resembles a knife, the winter will be cutting or cold, and if it looks like a fork, the winter will be mild.

A reporter who managed after several tries to pop open a slippery persimmon seed with a pliers found the germ shaped like a spoon.

If that wasn't enough to encourage immediate purchase of snow tires, meteorologist David Smith at the National Weather Service office here reports there were 17 foggy mornings in Kentucky last August.

Lower electric rate asked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Consumers may get a break on their electric bills if the Public Utilities Commission approves an application by the Southern California Edison Co. to cut its rates to reflect lower costs.

Edison Vice President Edward A. Myers Jr. said Wednesday average residential electric bills could be lowered by 75 cents a month as a result of lower costs of oil, imported hydroelectiric power and other production factors during the past year.

Reds complete playoff, series sweep

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven games ago, Sparky Anderson knew it would take only seven games for his Cincinnati Reds to become baseball champions of the world.

The first of those seven came in Philadelphia. The Reds, winners of the National League's West Division, were playing the Phillies, the best of the East.

"I said to myself then that if we beat (pitcher) Steve Carlton in the first game, we'd win seven straight," Anderson recalled.

The Reds did beat Carlton. Then they beat Philadelphia again ... and again. That was the National League pennant.

Then came the New York Yankees, who had just won the American League flag in an exhausting five-game series with Kansas City.

The Reds beat the Yanks. Then they beat them again ... and again ... and again. Eeven games later, the Reds were No. 1 for the second straight year.

Thursday night's clincher was a 7-2 romp built on Johnny Bench's two home runs and the pitching of Gary Nolan and reliever Will McEnaney. It was the first World Series sweep since Baltimore's over Los Angeles in 1966. And it was the first time a National League club had taken two straight World Series since the New York Giants did it in 1921-22.

It was, to put it mildly, awesome.

"They beat us tonight," muttered catcher Thurman Munson, the only bright spot in the otherwise pale New York lineup. "They beat us this time, they beat us four straight, they beat the hell out of us all the way through. What else is there to say?"

Whatever else there was to say was said succinctly by Anderson.

"This ball club has more class than any other club of the 24 all around the country," Anderson said. "Last year, when we beat Boston in seven games, they were like kids. Now they're men."

Indeed. In the Cincinnati locker room, the mood was remarkably subdued, as though these Reds were used to such championships—which, in fact, they are. There was little of the yahooing, champagne-bathing, towel-throwing of last year, when it took the Reds seven dramatic games to subdue the Boston Red Sox.

"Last year was certainly exciting, more so than this one," said Bench, the runaway Most Valuable Player in the Series for his eight hits in 15 at-bats and six runs batted in. Five of those RBI came in the clincher on a two-run homer in the fourth and a three-run shot in the ninth.

"And last year might have been more gratifying for me, personally," added Bench, whose .533 Series average more than offset his dismal, injury decimated season when he batted .234 with 16 homers and 74 RBI.

"I can't believe what a relief it has been to play like this after having done almost nothing all year. I may have played better games in my career, but, taking into consideration the situation and the magnitude, I have to say this is probably my finest single game."

It may well have been Munson's finest game ever, too. He had four hits, scored one run and drove in the other. His six straight hits over two games tied a Series record set in 1924 by Washington's Goose Goslin.

"There are two ways of looking at it," he said of his winning performance on a losing team. "The self-satisfaction is super. We all have big egos and, from a personal standpoint, the hitting is super. But five years from now, all they're gonna remember is that we lost the Series in four straight."

Munson batted .529 in the Series, far above any other Yankees starter. New York as a whole hit a paltry .222 to the Reds' .313.

In the first inning, Munson singled and scored on Chris Chambliss' double. In the fifth, Mickey Rivers singled, stole second and scored on Munson's single.

But each time the Yanks got a run, the Reds got more.

In the fourth inning, Joe Morgan walked and stole second with such ease that Munson didn't even bother throwing. With two out, George Foster singled him home. Then Bench unloaded on an Ed Figueroa fastball and sent it soaring down the left-field line. It hit the foul screen in front of the upper deck and the Reds led 3-1.

"Yeah, I knew it was out," Bench said. "But at first I didn't know if it was going to be fair. The way I hit it, though, as soon as it started straightening out, I figured it was good. I stood watching it at the plate—not because I didn't want to have to walk back, but just to make sure."

In the ninth, with the Yanks down by just one run, the Reds demolished any hopes they had of making a comeback.

Tony Perez walked, then Dan Driessen did, too. In came Dick Tidrow, replacing Figueroa. One out later, Bench hit his second homer, a line drive a couple of rows back in the lower left-field seats.

"Tidrow had gotten me out in the third game with a slider, gotten me to hit into a double play with it, so I was thinking slider," Bench said. "That's what he threw and I really got into it."

A few minutes earlier, Yankees Manager Billy Martin had gotton out of it. The game, that is. He was thumbed by NL umpire Bruce Froemming at first base.

"Thurmon Munson had turned around a few times on balls and strikes," Froemming said, starting his explanation. "Then Bill Deegan (the home plate umpire) threw a ball out of play. I watched it roll into the Yankee dugout. I saw Martin pick it up and throw it back on the field in Deegan's direction.

And Martin was immediately gone. "I would throw a manager out of any field in the country for doing what he did," Froemming said. "It's an automatic ejection for throwing equipment on the field."

The Reds' last run came on successive ground-rule doubles off Tidrow, by Cesar Geronimo down the right-field line, and Dave Concepcion, down the left-field line. Each was grabbed by a souvenir-hunting fan.

Not much later, the souvenir-hunters were on the field by the hundreds, even before Roy White's fly ball settled in Foster's glove in left field.

Rams are fans' only title hope

Southern California sports fans' hopes of a championship in professional sports ride on the Rams.

That was never more definite than it is right now after the stunning deals made in the NBA by the Boston Celtics.

With Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe joining Dave Cowens on the front line and Jo Jo White and Charlie Scott in the backcourt with John Havlicek coming off the bench, the Celtics have the best first six players of any team in the league.

Barring injury they should walk away with the title. The only contest in the NBA this year will be to see who will earn the right to lose to the Celts in the championship series.

Unless the Lakers can swing a deal for a forward that can rebound and play defense and do some scoring, the season promises to be a mighty long one.

None of the current group of forwards can do all three of the aforementioned. Most of them haven't shown that they can do even two.

When Jerry West was first introduced as Laker coach, the top priority he listed in player requirement was for a "power forward." The names of Wicks, Rowe, Julius Erving and Paul Silas were the ones bandied about.

Since then all four of these gentlemen have changed teams. But none will be relocating farther west than Denver. Three of them will be playing in the east: Wicks and Rowe in Boston and Erving in Philadelphia.

JKC is unhappy

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Lakers, has expressed his displeasure over criticism about the Lakers' failure to obtain a forward with all-around ability.

Cooke says the club is negotiating with three forwards right now and that the Lakers will get one of the three.

That is comforting to hear. But the three that would have attracted most favorable attention, Wicks, Rowe and Erving, have already been dealt for by other teams.

So no matter who Cooke lands now, chances are the fans will feel let down. As of this moment, Laker prospects are exceedingly dim. Unless there is a major deal, Forum attendance, for Laker games, will probably continue to fall as it has the last two years.

Incidentally, one NBA source was not at all surprised that Wicks did not wind up with the Lakers. There were two reasons. (1.) Wicks, not popular with the Portland administration, WANTED to come to the Lakers and (2.) Lakers' assistant coach Jack McCloskey is a former Trail Blazer coach who got along badly if at all with Super Sidney.

HERE 'N THERE — Another example of the ridiculous extent to which salaries have escalated was revealed recently when the Seattle Supersonics waived center-forward LaRue Martin.

Martin, the NBA's number one draft choice in 1972 (by Portland) was fundamentally unsound according to the Seattle coach Bill Russell and had never had adequate coaching (instructing or teaching if you will).

Martin overpaid

Yet Martin is working on the remaining two years of a five-year contract calling for a rumored $200,000 a year!

Under the deal which sent Martin from Portland to Seattle, the Sonics would have given Portland a third-round draft choice and paid $40,000 of Martin's salary this year and $80,000 next year. Portland would have paid the rest.

Now, the Trail Blazers say they will be obligated to pay Martin more than $200,000 a year for the next two years WHETHER OR NOT HE PLAYS FOR THEM.

It's another case similar to that of Jim McDaniel who couldn't play in the NBA and is drawing over $100,000 on a no-cut contract.

Speaking of the Rams, latest difficulty revealed to be troubling owner Carroll Rosenbloom in his never-ending war with Commissioner Pete Rozelle is a dispute over rent at the Coliseum.

It's a complicated lease matter. Rosenbloom feels the rental the Rams pay is for whatever number of games the Rams play there including playoff contests.

The NFL office, however, has informed the Rams they owe the Coliseum $220,000 for three playoff games the last three years.

In college baseball, Ed Cheff, 33, has replaced Ramon Hooker as baseball coach at Lewis-Clark College (Lewiston, Ida.). Lewis-Clark upset La Verne in the district playoffs last year.

West debuts as coach

NEW YORK (AP) — It didn't take Jerry West long to learn the frustrations of coaching— just one game.

"You sit there, and there's really not much you can do," said West, a consistently winning player but 0-1 as a coach after his Los Angeles Lakers dropped a 102-97 decision to the New York Knicks in a National Basketball Association opener Thursday night.

"You can make some moves, try different combinations of players, set up certain plays — but that's about it," West said. "In the end it's up to the players to make it all work."

The 38-year-old West, a backcourt legend who retired as the third leading scorer in NBA history two years ago, was named this summer to succeed Bill Sharman as coach of the Lakers in a Hollywood version of the return of the prodigal son.

It has not been an easy transition for "Mr. Clutch," the 13-time all-star who looked fit as ever as he sat at the end of the Lakers bench, nattily attired in tan slacks, a yellow shirt, a brown tie with white polka dots and a chocolate-colored blazer.

"I was not displeased with the way we played," he said. "I was only displeased with the result."

The Lakers squandered a 10-point third-quarter lead, fell behind by 13 points in the final period, then closed within two before New York's John Gianelli hit a three-point play for the clincher with 53 seconds to go.

Afterwards, West spoke of his new role.

"The biggest difference is that when you're on the bench you are not really able to work your frustrations off," he said. "As a player you can go out there, run around, crash the boards and give everything you have. Then if you lose, you can sit back and at least say you did all you could.

"As a coach you don't have that physical release. You sit there and all you can do is think. You're constantly asking yourself, 'What did I do wrong? What should I have done differently?' The tendency is to sit there and second-guess yourself to death.

"One good thing about it is that I have been away for two years. I don't particularly think like a player any more. I'm much more objective in my thinking and in the way I approach things."

West expressed admiration for an unorthodox move made by Knicks Coach Red Holzman, one which proved decisive.

"When they went with their small lineup, with Bill Bradley and Jim McMillian (both 6-5) playing together at forward, they turned the game around," he said. "We just didn't adjust well at all. They were getting open 15-foot shots, and the right men were getting them. They are an intelligent, well-coached team. They really picked us apart."

West was disappointed that his team turned a 62-52 lead into a 95-82 deficit. "I thought it should have been closer. We lost our poise offensively. We have to be patient in our offense, and tonight we weren't very patient."

Patience is one thing the Lakers can learn from their coach.

"It would have been nice to win tonight, in my first game, but I'm not going to lose sleep over it," he said. "The first win will come, sooner or later."

Beavers' Fertig returning 'home'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Craig Fertig, class of '65, returns for Saturday's homecoming at the University of Southern California aiming to ruin the day.

His chances appear slim.

A star quarterback and 10 years assistant coach at USC, Fertig is in his first year as head coach of the Oregon State Beavers who are four touchdown underdogs to the Trojans.

Southern California is ranked No. 7 nationally in The Associated Press poll with a 4-1 overall record and 2-0 in the Pacific-8. UCLA's Bruins, 5-0-1 rank fourth and also are 2-0 in the conference as they go to Berkeley to battle the California Bears.

Oregon State, 1-5, shocked the Bears 10-9 last Saturday to bring Fertig his first coaching victory and it came in a conference game, after the Bears this season have been beset by injuries—losing their first three quarterbacks.

In the other Pac-8 games this Saturday, Oregon plays at Washington and Stanford at Washington State.

In addition to losing the game to Oregon State, the California club lost ace quarterback Joe Roth, the second leading passer in the nation. He suffered a strained knee and isn't expected to play.

Stanford kept in the Rose Bowl race a week ago with a 34-28 victory over Washington as the Cardinals, Washington and Oregon State each put conference records of 1-1 on the line this week.

UCLA's Bruins crushed Washington State 62-3 and the Bruins' defense has given up just six touchdowns in six games and intercepted 11 passes the past two weeks. Oscar Edwards intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble early in the WSU game, leading to touchdowns each time.

In addition to losing Roth, the Bears have two other starters on the doubtful list—wide receiver Wesley Walker with an inflamed arch and linebacker Phil Heck with a knee injury.

Washington State and Stanford match passing offenses and ranked 1-2 in the league in the throwing department. Stanford's Gary Benjamin has averaged 287 yards aerially and WSU's Jack Thompson 204.6 although UCLA grabbed off four of his throws last week.

WSU has averaged 284 yards passing this season and Stanford 265, but the Cougars are only 1-5 and the Cardinals of Stanford 2-4.

Oregon hasn't mounted much offense this season, losing to Notre Dame 41-0 last week with a net of zero yards. So the Ducks defense shoulders much of the load and this week must stop Washington quarterback Warren Moon who threw for 209 yards and two touchdowns against Stanford.

Pincay feasts in Oaktree meet

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Laffit Pincay Jr. continued to make a runaway of the jockey race at the Oak Tree at Santa Anita meet Thursday, scoring five victories including a triumph aboard Summer Evening in the $22,000 feature race.

Thursday's showing gave Pincay 19 firsts for the meet, seven more than second-place Darrel McHargue.

Lowly Caps tie Kings

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bouncing back from a 6-0 loss to Montreal Tuesday, the Washington Capitals tied Los Angeles 5-5 Thursday night on Guy Charron's goal with 49 seconds to play.

The Kings had taken a 5-4 lead 16 seconds earlier on Marcel Dionne's second goal of the game. And, Los Angeles had a 4-2 lead 11:37 into the third period on successive goals by Mike Murphy and Butch Goring.

Despite falling behind, the Caps didn't give up and that pleased team captain Yvon Labre. He blamed the National Hockey League expansion team's 1-4-2 record on bad luck.

Washington coach Tom McVie wasn't satisfied with the tie.

"The team should have won with the hustle and desire that was shown the whole game," he said. "They showed a lot of courage because the team has been made fun of by everyone in the papers."

The Kings scored first on a 20-foot shot from the slot by Dan Kozak. The Capitals tied the score 36 seconds later as Harvey Bennett deflected a shot in front of the net.

Washington took the lead 21 seconds into the second period as Blair Stewart made his first goal of the season. Los Angeles tied the game midway through the period as the puck bounced off a Washington defenseman's skate. The goal went to Dionne.

Los Angeles took a two-goal lead halfway through the final period but the Capitals evened the score at 4-4 with two goals 1:45 apart after the Los Angeles goals by Murphy and Goring.

Garey, Damien clash for SAL lead

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

A collision between the two San Antonio League frontrunners highlights tonight's prep football action in the valley.

Garey High will travel to Damien for a 7:30 p.m. game that will determine the SAL leader after four weeks of play. Both teams have 3-0 league records. Garey, the valley's only undefeated team, is 3-0-1 on the year while Damien is 4-1.

Pomona will host Ganesha at Mt. San Antonio College, Claremont will visit Montclair and Upland will travel to Chino in the three remaining SAL clashes, all scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

With half its slate for the week played Thursday night, the Hacienda League has only two contests tonight, but both are very important.

League leader San Dimas will host Royal Oak at Bonita High while Alta Loma entertains Bonita at Chaffey College, both at 8 p.m. San Dimas has a 3-0 league mark while Alta Loma, Bonita and Royal Oak all stand 2-1. Walnut is 3-1 after disposing of Gladstone, 30-0, Thursday night at MSAC.

Other prep games tonight will find Redlands at Chaffey, Ontario Christian at Brethren Chaffey at 8 p.m., Ontario Christian at Brethren High in Paramount at 7:30 p.m. and American Christian hosting Victor Valley Christian at Ontario's John Galvin Park at 7:30 p.m.

Three local squads will play Saturday. Webb will host mighty Notre Dame at 2 p.m. and Calvary Baptist will play at Liberty Christian in Huntington Beach at 1 p.m. (That game was originally scheduled for tonight at 8.) Finally, La Verne Lutheran will visit Aquinas Saturday at 8 p.m.

Garey coach Lawson Bush expects a wide open game tonight in his Vikings' encounter with Damien.

"Damien does more things offensively than any high school team I have ever seen," Bush said. "They have so many different sets and can hurt you so many ways."

While Bush respects the Spartan offense, he doesn't expect his own to be timid. "We're not going to be conservative, that, I'll tell you. We're going to go right at them and try a lot of different things," Bush said.

Garey coach said he is particularly wary of Damien quarterback Dan Marconi and fullback Leo Burke, with good reason. Marconi is far and away the valley's leading passer, with 731 yards and seven touchdowns. He has completed 61 of 104 attempts for a 58.6 per cent mark and has been intercepted just three times. Burke has rushed for 315 yards on 67 attempts.

"We'll go right after their quarterback," said Bush. "I don't think there's a team in the league with quicker defensive backs that we have. (Linebacker) James Moore might be our leader on defense, and the other teams key on him, but he's not all we have."

Indeed he's not. Garey has surrendered just 39 points all year and a mere 13 in three SAL games.

"Garey has a good football team," said Damien coach Dick Larson. "They have good personel and they're very aggressive. Our offense is capable of scoring points and theirs is too."

Thus far, Damien has outscored the Vikings by a wide margin. The Spartans have scored 115 points in five games while Garey has managed 78.

"We could have scored a lot more," Bush conjectured, but we keep dropping touchdown passes."

In spite of that, Garey quarterback Al Clay has thrown for five touchdowns among his 37 completions for 523 yards. Two of his targets—David Forte and Chris Davis—are speedy gamebreakers.

But Marconi has a top-notch catcher of his own in Tom Lopez, the SAL's top receiver with 19 catches for 198 yards and three touchdowns.

Both coaches report that their squads will be healthier for this game than they have been all year. Larson lists linebacker Tony Viotto as doubtful with an ankle injury but no one else on either team is expected to miss the big game.

Winless Pomona will try to change all that tonight in its homecoming game against crosstown rival Ganesha. The Red Devils, who have lost all three of their SAL games by two points each, will be out to avenge a 14-6 loss to the Giants last year.

Pomona will have to stop the SAL's leading rusher in Floyd Eddings, who has amassed 433 yards on 75 carries, a 5.7 average.

Speaking of rushers, Royal Oak will be out to stop a good one tonight in San Dimas' Bob Pleasant. The speedy fullback has gained 518 yards in 61 carries for an 8.5 average.

And Alta Loma, trying to bounce back from its first defeat last week at the hands of the Walnut Mustangs, will use its defensive prowess to try to corral Bonita's Keith Brandt, the valley's leading receiver with 22 catches for 460 yards, an average of 20.9 yards per catch.

Celts lend order to NBA

By The Associated Press

Some things never change.

On a day when the New York Nets were shipping the heart and soul of their franchise down the turnpike to Philadelphia and when 13-time AllStar Jerry West was finding out what it was like to coach, it was up to the classy captain of the Boston Celtics to lend some sense of order to it all.

So John Havlicek scored 32 points, including six in the last three minutes of regulation play and eight in overtime, and sank his final eight shots as the Celtics rallied to beat the Indiana Pacers 129-122 in one of four National Basketball Association openers Thursday night.

"That's him," marveled Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard. "He's been doing that all his life. That's what makes him one of the greatest."

In other NBA openers, the New York Knicks trimmed the Los Angeles Lakers 102-97, the Houston Rockets beat the Atlanta Hawks 120-104 and the Buffalo Braves defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 133-112.

As for NBA debuts, it was mostly negative. Indiana, one of four teams absorbed from the American Basketball Association, was a loser. Among new coaches, West, of the Lakers, and Hubie Brown of the Hawks were losers, while Tates Locke of the Braves and Tom Nissalke of the Rockets were winners.

The Celtics, defending NBA champions, trailed by 18 points in the second period, when Boston center Dave Cowens picked up his fifth personal foul. But they closed to 63-57 at halftime and finally caught up on a basket by Sidney Wicks with 4:11 left.

The teams then traded baskets until Havlicek's jumper with 49 seconds left sent the game into overtime. Havlicek then hit two baskets in the first two minutes of overtime as the Celtics broke it open.

"Hondo has fantastic stamina," Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn said of the 36-year-old Havlicek. "He can do it all. One of our broadcasters said Havlicek is going to fall apart in a game someday, but I don't think it will be that way—at least not for a while yet."

Charlie Scott added 28 points for Boston, Jo Jo White had 23 and Wicks had 21 in his debut with the Celtics. Billy Knight topped Indiana with 29.

Knicks 102, Lakers 97

Bill Bradley scored all 16 of his points in the second half and Jim McMillian, playing his first game for the Knicks, got 16 of his 18 after intermission as New York erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 29 points and 17 rebounds.

Rockets 120, Hawks 104

Mike Newlin scored 33 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 20—including 14 in the fourth quarter and 11 in a row—as Houston took command by outscoring Atlanta 65-49 in the second half.

Braves 133, Bucks 112

Buffalo made up for the absence of three-time scoring champion Bob McAdoo, out with a back injury, by getting 23 points from John Shumate, 22 from Ernie DiGregorio and 21 from reserve Johnny Neumann.

Legal hassles annoy Flyers

By AP Sports Writer

They stood behind the player benches at the Spectrum in Philadelphia, a hockey game unfolding before their eyes but other things distracting their thoughts.

Coach Fred Shero watched as four of his Philadelphia Flyers performed and thought about the assault charges that have been hanging over their heads since a National Hockey League quarter-final playoff game against Toronto last April.

Coach Billy Reay watched his Black Hawks play without embattled defenseman Bobby Orr, whose future always has been cloudy because of knee troubles but is cloudier now because of the court hassles over his signing by Chicago.

That the Flyers won 5-1 and that Mel Bridgman—one of the four facing charges—had scored twice was lost in Shero's post-game comments.

"It's hard to get them to concentrate at practice with all this legal stuff going on," he said. "Why are they (the Toronto courts) letting it hang? If they're going to send them to jail, why not do it now?

"Murderers get better justice than this."

Reay was trying to keep clear of the controversy that has been burning since last June, when the Black Hawks signed Orr after the defenseman obtained free agency from the Boston Bruins.

"I haven't talked to him since I left Chicago," said Reay of Orr, who has missed the last two games because of knee trouble and may miss more if the Hawks and Bruins can't agree on compensation to be paid Boston for the loss of Orr's services.

Each team has gone to court in the matter, Boston to keep Orr from playing until compensation is settled and Chicago to keep him playing while the matter is discussed. Orr has been caught

SAL leaders keep winning

Upland, Claremont and Damien highs continued to run past their opposition in San Antonio League cross country meets Thursday, with Pomona winning the fourth SAL meet of the day.

The Highlanders, Wolfpack and Spartans all have 4-0 league records after Upland belted Chino, 19-42, Claremont overwhelmed Montclair, 17-46, Damien downed Garey, 24-31, and Pomona topped Ganesha, 20-37.

Roger Innes led the Scots as usual with a time of 9:58 and brothers Mike and Mark Trilevsky ran second and third.

Claremont's Locke Breaux covered the difficult Montclair course in 10:12 and teammate George Waters finished second. Both are sophomores.

The Wolfpack was coming off a successful showing at the Palos Verdes Invitational, where Claremont finished first in JV competition, second in the girl's division and fifth among sophomore teams.

Damien, off to its best cross country start ever, won even through Garey junior Jose Ramirez finished first in 9:54. Damien's Tony Reyes and Winston Armstrong ran second and third.

Pomona's Ed Allen turned in a quick 9.43 and teammate Jim Dean was second as the Red Devils ran past Ganesha.

Damien's perfect SAL record will in all likelihood shattered next Thursday when the Spartans venture to Upland to meet the Highlanders, the No. 2 team in the CIF 3A. Other meets will find Chino at Pomona, Claremont at Garey and Ganesha taking on Montclair.

Walnut High made Gladstone look like a pet rock Thursday night.

The Mustangs toyed with the Gladiators in trouncing the visitors, 30-0, in a Hacienda League game at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

The whitewashing boosts Walnut to a 3-1 league and 4-2 overall record. Walnut trails undefeated San Dimas by a half game, at least until tonight when the rest of the leaders swing into action.

Running back Kevin Morgan led the offensive unit as he rushed to three touchdowns and 135 yards on 16 carries.

Morgan now has 740 yards on 124 carries for the season and nine TDs.

Jags enjoy romp

Tom Jefferson, Ontario High's powerful tailback, piled up 160 first half yards as the Jaguars downed Sierra Vista, 34-16, Thursday night at Chaffey High's Graber field.

Jefferson quickly put the Dons behind 14-0, as he scored two touchdowns on runs of 36 and 23 yards. Jefferson bulled his way over tacklers for an average of 9.1 yards per carry in first action as he handled the ball 17 times.

Dons were able to quiet his running efforts in the second half as he ran the ball eight times for 30 yards. He finished the night with 190 total yards on 25 totes.

Sierra Vista couldn't contain the big tailback even though the Don defense knew he was going to handle the ball.

However, it was Albert Newman's 86-yard kickoff return that broke the Dons' spine late in the second quarter. Sierra Vista had cut the Jaguars' lead to 14-8 on a 41-yard pass play.

"Newman's run turned the ball game back into our favor after Sierra Vista had scored on that pass play," noted Ontario's Doug Brooks. "It was just a fantastic run as he did it all by himself."

Newman gathered in the ball at his 14-yard line and headed for the sidelines as he broke three tackles that should have downed him. But he stayed on his feet and broke loose for the touchdown.

The spectacular run, which sent the Ontario homecoming crowd into a frenzy, shut down any thoughts Sierra Vista had of bouncing back to reclaim the lead. And Jefferson, emulating UCLA's Ricky Bell, added a third TD to his total before the half came to a conclusion. Jefferson lost a 53-yard TD run in the second half on a Ontario holding penalty.

Brooks commented, "We played a good ballgame tonight and the kids needed this win going into the latter part of the season. We also played a good defensive game as the linebackers did a good job."

Ontario, which had only scored 14 points previously in three Hacienda league games, exploded for a season high of 34. The Jaguars' largest total of points in any one game had been 12. The Jaguars rolled up 224 ground yards in doing it.

Ontario, 2-2 in HL play, travels to Bonita next Friday to tangle with the hot and cold Bearcats.

Gophers put on probation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The University of Minnesota and the University of Nevada-Reno were placed on probation Thursday by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for failing to observe NCAA membership obligations.

Minnesota received an indefinite suspension and Nevada-Reno was suspended for one year from participation in any postseason athletic competition or appearance on any NCAA-sanctioned television program.

Minnesota's severe penalty was due to its failure "to fulfill the conditions and obligations of NCAA membership by taking the position that it would not in the future properly apply the association's eligibility rules to certain student-athletes," explained Arthur R. Reynolds, chairman of the NCAA committee on infractions.

"Such a general disregard for the fundamental membership obligations must result in a broad, severe and significant penalty against the university if the responsibilities an institution agrees to accept as a voluntary member of the association are to have any meaning," Reynolds added.

The NCAA announcement said the probationary period would remain in effect until Minnesota conducts "its intercollegiate athletic program in accordance with all requirements and interpretations of NCAA legislation."

Nevada-Reno was penalized for improper application of the association's minimum two-point grade average for enrolling a student-athlete, the NCAA said.

A more severe penalty might have been imposed, Reynolds said, if Nevada-Reno had not acted "on Sept. 28, 1976, to declare the involved student-athlete ineligible, thus finally fulfilling its conditions and obligations of membership in the association."

Powerful Reds destroy Yanks

And half an hour after that, Yankee Stadium stood like an enormous tomb in the ravaged South Bronx. Silent, littered, ravaged itself with huge chunks of sod torn away. And most of all, empty.

More than anything else, more even than the desolation in the Yankees locker room, the ball park symbolized what had happened in four straight ball games.

The Yankees, once the most feared team in baseball, had rolled over and played dead.

"When you're in your first playoff, your first World Series," Bench said of the Yankees' task, "the pressure is phenomenal.

"After you go through a grueling playoff and win that, you have to gear yourself up all over again. That was where we had them. We'd been through it all last year. We could cope with it better. Next year they'll be able to cope with it."

George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the Yankees, testified to that. "We're on our way," he said. "The Reds have a great team. They have World Series experience. Next year we'll be back and we'll have experience, too."

And what of the Reds?

"We'll be even better next year, because Johnny Bench is all the way back," Anderson said.

ANTIQUE REVOLVERS — Moe Gronski, on left, shows his pair of matched Smith & Wesson revolvers, custom-made for Russian royalty, to show promoter Don Bullock. Gronski's collection and many others will be on display this weekend at California Gun & Collector's Show at L.A. County Fairgrounds in Pomona.

Gun show to open

Don Bullock will bring his California Gun and collector's Show to the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona this Saturday and Sunday.

Gun buffs in the San Gabriel Valley area have found Bullock's past shows to be more than satisfying, for the producer tries to bring in a large variety of weapons typical of every period in the country,from Colonial Days before the Revolution up to modern times. Thus, the show will be chock full of flintlocks, Brown Bess hunting rifles, Bowie-type knives, Civil War carbines, pistols of every calibre ever made, swords, military uniforms and decorations, ammunition molds and all sorts of paraphernalia connected with the handling, caring for, storing, wearing and transportation of guns.

Among collectors, great interest concerning the Colt, Smith and Wesson and other handguns for these were the weapons of the law for many years in this country, as well as being used by the military.

Each of the above-named revolvers had their staunch adherents, who insisted it was the best in the world, most reliable, most accurate, most easy to keep clean, or to repair, etc. Buffalo Bill, so it was reported, carried Smith and Wessons, beautiful pistols, ivory-handled, engraved with his name, date of manufacture and other inscriptions. When the famous buffalo hunter-scout played Moscow in the 1899's, with his Wild West Show, his hosts became enamored of his guns, and when Bill returned to the States, he had Smith and Wesson produce some magnificent 45's, which were presented to the Tsar and top officials of the Russian government.

Only a limited number of First Model Russian Smith and Wessons were produced and they soon became collector's items. Moe Gronski, a Southern California gun collector-dealer, owns a few of these firearms.

For generations a pocketknife has been a boy's most prized possession. His dad usually carried one too, only smaller.

Thousands of such knives were manufactured from the late 1800's on in Great Britain, Europe and this country, and they came in all sizes; some with but two blades, others with four, plus a screwdriver, bottle opener, awl, chisel and even a scissors. Handles were made of bone and in some cases had rural scenes carved on them. The famous Boy Scout knife is an excellent example of such an implement; used to whittle, cut fishing lines, dig knotholes out of planks and to carve meat if on a camping expedition.

Show hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days. Location is in Building 5, the L.A. County Fairgrounds, at White and McKinley, in Pomona. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for kids under twelve.

Chukar, quail seasons begin

The Southern California quail and chukar partridge season opens Saturday, with hunter prospects for quail from fair to good, for chukar, poor.

Blame the chukar situation on the weather. The recent rains have left the desert hills and canyons well-watered, and as a result, the chukar scattered.

"They will be tough hunting," says John Massie, wildlife habitat supervisor for the California Department of Fish and Game and on acknowledged master in locating chukar.

Massie says the chukar are not expected to be found in their usual habitat, but those there are will be located in the Ord Mountains and the Providence and New York Mountains of San Bernardino County; the El Paso Hills between Red Rock Canyon and Red Mountain in Kern County, and on the desert slopes of the Angeles National Forest.

The bag limit for chukar in Southern California is six per day, six in possession except in an intercoastal range area from Santa Barbara County through San Benito County where the limit is four per day, four in possession.

Quail also have been scattered by the rainy weather, but because of their far greater numbers, quail hunting should be from fair to good.

The limit on quail is 10 per day, 10 in possession and aggregate of all species.

Here's a roundup of prospects:

Inyo County: valley quail populations down from last year. Quail to be found in dense brush along the Owens River and in foothills of White, Inyo and Sierra. Mountain quail to be found in some of major canyons in Sierra and in Hunter Mountain area.

Los Angeles County: quail populations at very low levels, but the Angeles National Forest offers some opportunities in areas adjacent to wildlife burns. Some opporutnities exist within right-of-way of California Aqueduct, but hunters cautioned that only certain portions open to hunting and only walk-in hunting allowed.

Santa Barbara County: quail should be plentiful in Cuyama Valley but well scattered. Brood counts were smaller for coastal areas of Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

Orange and San Diego counties: quail plentiful but private property limits hunting opportunities. Exceptions are Cleveland National Forest and McCain Valley in San Diego County.

Colorado River: quail plentiful in riparian habitat along river. Hunters should remember that permits are necessary to hunt on Indian reservations. Fair hunting in Palo Verde Valley, Mohave Valley and desert washes.

Imperial County and Riverside County: quail plentiful but scattered. Permission is required to hunt on private property. Quail present in fair numbers on Perris Lake State Recreation Area and in Santa Rosa Mountains.

San Bernardino County: best hunting prospects in eastern part of county, especially Providence and New York Mountains.

Hunters are reminded the surest way of bringing both quail and chukar to bag is with a dog.

Further information is available in regulation booklets available at sporting goods stores and wherever licenses are sold.

Sailboat show set to open

More than 250 boats and 155 booth displays will jam the waterfront Long Beach Arena and adjacent pavilion for the eighth annual Southern California Sailboat Show, Friday through Sunday, Oct. 31.

Hours are 2-10 p.m., weekdays; 12-10:30 p.m., Saturday, and also Veterans' Day, Mon., Oct. 25; and 12-7 p.m., Sundays.

The show will be the largest all-sail exhibition ever held in the West. Total displays are up from 50,000 square feet last year to 90,000 square feet this year.

There are 75 boat manufacturers this year as opposed to 55 last time. Of special interest is the fact that more than two dozen brand-new craft will be unveiled at the Long Beach event.

Several notable personalities will take part in the show, including Bob Lengyel, the Singlehanded Trans-Atlantic conqueror in a tiny 26-foot Dawson; adventurer Britt McPherson, world high-jump record holder Dwight Stones, who's into catamarans now; and Spike Africa, the "President of the Pacific Ocean."

The show has taken on an international flavor with Great Britain, France, Taiwan, Canada, Ireland, Sweden, West GErmany, Australia, Norway and Italy represented.

Boats will range up to the CT 48 and the Westsail 43, craft which carry price tags well in excess of $100,000.

Irvine Lake is to be stocked

Irvine Lake is closed this week in preparation for its fall opening, Friday, October 29, reminds lake concessioner Russ Cleary. Prior to that date the lake will be stocked with a minimum of 3,500 pounds of rainbow trout, or about 6,000 to 7,000 individual fish.

Cleary says he expects most of the planted trout to weigh "close to three-quarters of a pound each." In addition, he says, a few trout from 4 to over 6 pounds will be stocked "to give fishermen some lunkers to shoot for."

All boat and motor rentals for the opening will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

"We've got 150 motor boats and another 50 row boats, so we don't expect a sellout unless the turnout is unusually large," Cleary says.

The fall opening of Irvine probably marks the first time in the history of operation of the lake, that the reservoir will be open virtually year-around. Normally the lake is closed at this time and does not open until mid-January, but the unavailability of water for nearby Anaheim Lake, which Cleary also operates, has caused the cahgne in scheduling.

Irvine will open at 6:45 a.m. on opening day, October 29 and Saturday, October 30, but due to a change to Pacific Standard Time, will open at 6 a.m., beginning October 31.

Fishermen will be offered an unusual opportunity to catch channel catfish, crappie and bass this fall, Cleary notes.

"We've always opened the lake in the past when the trout fishing was virtually the main fishing," he says. "But when we reopen next week there still should be some good channel catfish hitting, possibly some nice catches of crappie, and we expect to see some large bass landed."

Clubs offer reward in death of bighorn sheep

The Society for the Conservation of Bighorn Sheep, the Southern Council of Conservation Clubs and the Los Angeles Chapter of Safari Club International have posted a $1,000 reward for information regarding the death of a bighorn sheep ewe found Friday on Cucamonga Peak in the San Bernardino National Forest.

Native bighorn sheep are fully protected by state law and may not be taken or possessed at any time.

Lt. Bruce Cochran, who is conducting an investigation for the California Department of Fish and Game, says he has a strong suspicion the animal was shot. The rib cage was removed and disposed of before he could examine the animal.

Cochran said the loss of this particular ewe was a serious blow to the study of a small band of bighorns in the Mt. Baldy-Cucamonga Peak area. The ewe, which was the leader of the band, had been fitted with a radio collar on July 25 and since that time had been monitored to learn the behavorial and travel habits of the band.

When the carcass of the ewe was discovered Friday, the radio collar was inoperative.

Glenn Sudmeier of the Society for the Conservation of Bighorn Sheep, who made the discovery, said the position of the carcass and its location gave every indication the ewe had been shot.

Sudmeier reported his find to the authorities, but when Cochran arrived on the scene to investigate, most of the carcass had been removed.

Sudmeier had been searching for the ewe with radio telemetry equipment when he found the carcass. He was filling in for the leader of the study, James DeForge, a graduate student at California State Polytechnic Institute, Pomona, who was out of the state at the time.

The ewe had been the subject of a search since Sept. 19 when the last signal from its collar had been received by DeForge.

DeForge said today that he had been in the field to track the ewe every two or three days from the time he affixed the collar on July 25. He said the loss of the ewe was a severe blow to his study which is sponsored by the Department of Fish and Game, the San Bernardino National Forest and the Society for the Conservation of Bighorn Sheep.

He said the death of the ewe was a "real crusher." He said the band apparently had scattered since the leader's death.

Information concerning the reward may be obtained from Dr. Loren Lutz of the Society for the Conservation of Bighorn Sheep at his office telephone (213) 284-5113, or at home, (213) 797-1287.

Violence erupts again in Puget Sound 'fish war'

PORT GAMBLE, Wash. (AP) — The Puget Sound "fish war" over salmon fishing rights has flared again in a seaborne riot pitting dozens of fishing boats against tear-gas throwing fisheries agents on state patrol boats.

A Coast Guard cutter and helicopter were called out to help protect the outmanned fisheries officers on six patrol boats.

At least one fishing boat was set ablaze in the sea-churning conflict that continued into the early morning hours Thursday. No injuries were reported and fisheries officials said they will not press charges immediately.

"It was a pretty hairy situation," said Bruce Gruett, assistant director of field services for the state Department of Fisheries. "They were making high-speed passes at our boats, trying to get us to collide with each other. There were some wild men out there."

At the heart of the dispute is a two-year-old ruling by U.S. District Court Judge George Boldt. Boldt said that treaties signed with Indians in the late 1800s gave the tribes the right to try to catch half of each harvestable salmon run.

That ruling upset the fisheries balance, giving Indians far more fish than they normally catch and reducing the catch of other fishermen, already hard-pressed.

The situation was complicated recenty when the state closed certain fishing grounds to preserve dwindling salmon stocks returning to spawn. Non-Indian fishermen have said they believe the closures are actually an effort by the state to make sure that Indians reach their harvest quota while non-Indians suffer.

There have been a half dozen illegal fishing incidents as a consequence, and violence has flared on several occasions.

Gruett said the trouble began again late Wednesday when officers tried to arrest a fisherman for fishing illegally at the mouth of Hood Canal, west of Seattle.

Gruett said the boat was among 40 to 50 vessels fishing for coho salmon despite the state order closing the fishery.

As agents on the patrol boats tried to make the arrest, swarms of other boats surrounded the state agents, officials said.

The fishing boats made high speed passes, churning the waters in a way that nearly sank one patrol boat during a similar incident last week.

Gruett said that after one especially close pass, an officer was hit by a flying object. He responded by firing tear gas.

Tear gas cannisters were used on several occasions. Fisherman David Frazer of Port Townsend, skipper of the Brendan Dee II, said his vessel was set afire by one cannister. The flames were extinguished before much damage could be done, he said.

MONTGOMERY WARD CHARG-ALL SECURITY PLAN

For Wards credit customers only: 5-way protection with Wards CSP!

Here's how Wards Charg-all Security Plan*can help you:

*An insurance program provided by Montgomery Ward Life Insurance Co. of Chicago and the Central National Insurance Co. of Omaha. Marketed by the Signature Agency Inc., a licensed insurance agency.

CSP is credit life insurance!

If you or your spouse suffers death or dismemberment before age 66, your Charg-all account will be paid in full up to $5000. And after age 66, you both are covered for accidental death and dismemberment.

CSP helps if you lose your job!

If you involuntarily lose income through job loss, strike or layoff, your monthly payments to Wards stop, too. CSP makes the payments for you up to 9 months. Loss of income due to illness or disability is not covered.

CSP is property protection!

Should your Wards-bought possessions be damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, windstorm, vandalism or 15 other perils they will be repaired or replaced, up to 3 years from date of purchase for an amount up to the highest balance upon which a premium has been assessed.

CSP is burglary insurance!

If anything purchased and charged to your Wards account is burglarized from your home—or anywhere in the world—CSP will replace that merchandise up to 3 years as stated above.

CSP is credit card protection!

If your Montgomery Ward Charg-all card is lost or stolen and misused, any unauthorized purchases charged to your account are paid by CSP! Under Federal law this liability can be up to $50.

The cost of peace of mind.

CSP costs ½ of one percent of the previous month's Charg-all balance. So if your balance was $90 one month, CSP costs you 45¢. Or if your balance was $160, the premium is 80¢.

Apply for a Charg-all account at any Wards store, or call toll free 800-241-8444. Ask for operator 185.

DEAR CHARG-ALL CUSTOMER:

At Montgomery Ward, our interests go beyond selling merchandise. We are concerned with the general good and welfare of the people who buy our merchandise. In today's unstable economic conditions, we want our customers to feel secure not only about the quality of what they buy at Wards, but secure as well that an unforeseen calamity will not deprive them of the full use of the merchandise they buy. Secure that involuntary loss of job income will not impose unbearably heavy burdens in paying for purchases already made. Secure that loss or theft of their Charg-all card will not subject them to any penalty whatsoever. Secure that their families are not faced with indebtedness in the event of personal tragedy. These are the problems that Wards CSP can help to solve. Wards Charg-all Security Plan is innovative in the field of consumer credit. If, ten or twenty years from now, most major retailers are offering their customers similar protection, I think Wards can be justifiably proud to have pointed the way.

Record Reviews

By DAVE MARSH

RINGO STARR: "Ringo's Rotogravure" (Atlantic SD 18193).

The hit is "A Dose of Rock 'n' Roll," but it must have been premeasured—the rock here is purely formula stuff. But then, Ringo's not really a rock singer—he's a pop artist. In consequence, the pop songs of quality here — "Dose," "Hey Baby," "You Don't Know Me at All" —are the ones which work: riff-based rockers by John Lennon ("Cookin") and Eric Clapton ("This Be Called a Song") lack structure, and Ringo can't get them moving. Still, his must be the most engagingly goofy voice in the world.

* * *

ERIC CLAPTON: "No Reason to Cry" (RSO RS-1-3004).

His last few albums have transformed Clapton from brilliant instrumentalist to skillful band leader and singer. Here, he lets the band slide, hooking up with Bob Dylan and the Band for three ill-conceived songs, lets others take the lead much of the time and generally turns in a mediocre effort. The best on this album is, predictably, a burning-blues, Otis Rush's Chicago classic, "Double Trouble."

* * *

RICHARD PRYOR: "Bicentennial Nigger" (Warner Bros. BS 2960).

With Lily Tomlin, Richard Pryor is the most frighteningly talented comedian working today, although he's far too scatalogical and overtly black to have Tomlin's across-the-board success. His records sell well, though, despite the fact that he is only beginning to figure out the possibilities of the medium — the final two tracks here indicate that he has ideas for the recording studio as well as for the stage. The title track, in fact, may be the most chilling two-a-half-minutes recorded in the '70's.

* * *

CHER: "I'd Rather Believe in You" (Warner Bros. BS 2898).

A great TV star she may be, but since leaving MCA records Cher hasn't made a single good record (and despite the usual bad-rap, she made several over the years). Here, she's asked to cope with material as unlikely as the R&B standard "Knock on Wood," as banal as Barry Manilow's "Early Morning Strangers," and as rancidly imatative of her best hits as the title track. Producers Michael Omartian and Steve Barri must have sleep-walked through this one.

* * *

JOHNNY COUGAR: "Chestnut Street Incident" (MCA-2225).

A recent discovery of David Bowie's ex-manager is presented in an attempt to couple Bowie and Bruce Springsteen as a sort of madonna-tough gut-oldie-freak singing Elvis and Roy Orbison. Stinks.

* * *

CHIP TAYLOR: "Somebody Shoot Out the Jukebox" (Columbia PC 34345).

The man who wrote "Wild Thing," among other raunch classics, has decided he's really Kris Kristofferson. He sings a little better, writes a lot less convincingly than Kristofferson's best, generally strikes a pretty mean pose. Dispensable.

* * *

WILLIE TEE: "Anticipation" (United Artists UA-LA655-G).

A talented but minor New Orleans R&B singer bites the disco dust. When is someone going to figure out that you fit the formula to the singer, not the other way around? When is someone going to unchain these voices?

Singer-songwriter Chip Taylor, backed by his band, Ghost Train, is watching the promising progress of his latest album, "Somebody Shoot Out the Jukebox," with relish. He hopes the hit album will get him established as a country-western performer. Taylor's real name is Chip Voight. He is the younger brother of actor Jon Voight.

RINGO RELAXES

Ex-Beatle Ringo Starr takes it easy in his home in Los Angeles where he discussed his slow-starting career after the breakup of the super-star British foursome. He has had two albums and several highly successful singles.

'Get up off your . . .'

Starr makes a trek, going as a single

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ringo Starr was always the "orphan" of the Beatles, the one member of that epochal rock combination on whose solo career most critics wouldn't have bet their warped copies of Tiny Tim's Greatest Hits.

His drumming was ho-hum. His voice was nothing to shout about. He didn't write songs.

And when the other Beatles were making headlines by forming new bands (Paul McCartney), fighting court battles (John Lennon) and giving benefit concerts for Bangladesh (George Harrison), where was Ringo?

He was recording a pair of highly forgettable albums — "Sentimental Journey" and "Beaucoups of Blues" — two pillars of musical mediocrity that had his friends worried about his future.

"My career started slow," Ringo says, looking back. "And every one thought, 'Well, that's the end of him.' I thought that myself for a while.

"Then I said to myself, 'Come on, get up off your - and do something now, you know what to do.' I started to do things."

What he did was cut a gold album — "Ringo" — and start off on a respectable, if not spectacular, career of his own.

Following "Ringo" were two more popular albums and a slew of highly successful singles, — comfortable, unpretentious tunes like "Back Off Boogaloo," "You're Sixteen" and "Oh My My."

Ringo's friends found other things to worry about.

"The 'Ringo' album sort of got me back into it again," he says, sipping beer alongside the pool of his rented Hollywood Hills home. "It sold a million in this country, and selling a million copies is very important to me."

Ringo hasn't forgotten those fledgling days of his solo career, and places paramount importance on the popularity of his music. Art for its own sake is fine, Ringo says, but he wants his albums to "be number ones, and I want at least three of the singles we pull off of them to be number ones.

"I go in there to make a hit album and some hit singles. That's what I work for. If it doesn't do that, then I've done something wrong. I'm trying to make popular records, pop music. I want them to be so popular everybody wants them."

Ringo has survived the breakup of the Beatles. At least, he's made up his mind not to run in place while waiting for a Beatles reunion.

"I can't see it coming off," he says of a get-together with his former mates. "I mean, not for a couple of years, if it comes at all."

Ringo has a new respect for his own talents, and believes he can continue to make it without the other three admittedly more creative Beatles.

"But they'll always be part of my career," he adds, "because I always ask them to write a couple of songs for me. They're very good songwriters."

Ringo's new album, "Ringo's Rotogravure," may be the closest a Beatlemaniac will come to a dream-come-true. Lennon, McCartney, and Paul's wife, Linda, all make appearances on the release. John, Paul and George all contributed songs.

"John flew in for four days to work on the album," Ringo says, He wrote me a song, he played on the album and helped me with it. Paul and Linda just happened to be working the Forum when I was doing the album, and they came into the studio and did a song Paul had written for me last June."

Eric Clapton also wrote a song and performed on the album, along with the likes of Peter Frampton, Melissa Manchester and Harry Nilsson. The supporting cast reads like a Who's Who of rock heavies.

"I'll take help from anyone I can find," Ringo says. "I'm not proud. A lot of the songs I do depend on who's in town when I'm working."

Ringo is now considering his first post-Beatles road tour. He had wanted to take a revue through Europe, taking along a variety of acts and performers, but "they figured I'd have to work two shows every night for four months to make any bread, so I've changed my mind about that. I've got to think of a different way of going out."

In the meantime, Starr is "resting up" and thinking about his other career: acting.

He has done a few films, and got a friendly reception from critics, and now he wants to become a serious actor.

"I used to want to become a film star," he says. "Now I want to become an actor. I'm getting to that point. I love acting, I love being on the big screen."

Starr says he has three prospective parts in the works now, but doesn't want to talk about them because "you start talking about them now, something crazy goes wrong. I'm sure one of the three will end up on your Silver Screen, but I don't know which one."

If he were asked to choose between films and music?

"Of course, it's the music. But eventually, I'd like to be able to do everything.

"I think I could get a job as a 60-year-old actor easier than I could as a 60-year-old pop star. That's it! Maybe the Beatles could get together in wheel chairs!

"Now, that would be a show."

To a dramatic actor, TV promises power

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — There are many stage actors who look down their patrician noses at television. It is, they seem to be saying, beneath them to appear in a TV series.

But there are exceptions. One of those exceptions is an intensely handsome and extremely talented young actor named Barry Bostwick. After finishing the LosAngeles running of a play "The Robber Bridegroom," Bostwick was heading for New York to open the play on Broadway. He stopped to talk about the TV biz.

He is definite in his feeling that he wants a series. But his reason for that ambition is unusual — and very practical.

"I've already done two pilots — Slither and The Quinns,"Bostwick says. "Neither sold, but now I'm looking to do another one. I feel it's very important to my career, because what's important in the acting profession is power."

He amplifies that, with a very serious dissertation on acting and why people become actors.

"Most actors go into the profession," he says, "because from a psychological standpoint they like the role of victim. And all actors are victims.

"Acting is a painful profession. The heartache you go through trying to get a part. The fact that you have to take orders constantly. All of that makes all actors victims.

"Well, I feel I've been a victim long enough. On the other hand, if you get to be a TV star, if you get to be a household word, you have power and you have flexibility — and thus you are no longer a victim."

As an example of the difference between being a victim and having power, he cites the play, "The Robber Bridgroom," in which he is currently employed. He says there are some things wrong with the play. He says if he had the power, he would have them fixed.

"But as things stand," he says, "I don't have that power, so there's nothing I can do about them"

Barry Bostwick comes from San Mateo, in northern California. His father, now head of the San Mateo County Development Association, used to be in politics. As a boy, Barry would go with him, and remembers handing out leaflets for Richard Nixon in his various state and national campaigns.

BARRY BOSTWICK

But politics didn't interest him when he grew up. Acting did. It all started in high school, when his girl friend, who was a dancer, needed a partner for a recital. Barry was that partner, and found he got a kick out of being on stage.

For a while, he was a dancer, but that soon palled.

"Dancing," he says, "is just too masochistic — even for a victim."

He has worked extensively on the New York stage and in Hollywood movie and TV studios. Because of that split, he keeps residences on both coasts.

"That way," he says, "I can work in either New York or Hollywood and not feel disoriented — I have my toothpaste wherever I am.

Harlem comics set for TV

The Harlem Globetrotters, celebrating their 50th anniversary, will be the subject of a Wide World of Sport special to be telecast on the ABC network in January.

The 90-minute show, hosted by Howard Cosell, was taped at the futuristic Omni complex in Atlanta, Ga.

In addition to a wild, funny basketball game, there are in-depth interviews with the Globetrotter stars conducted by Cosell, as well as a comic Trotters tour of "The World of Sid & Marty Krofft."

Hopper to star in Viet film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dennis Hopper, whose "Easy Rider" stirred a minor revolution in filmmaking, will play an American photojournalist in "Apocalypse Now."

The movie, about the Vietnam war, is now in production under direction of Francis Ford Coppola. It stars Marlon Brando, Robert Duvall, Martin Sheen and Frederic Forrest.

Hopper wrote "Easy Rider" in collaboration with co-star Peter Fonda and novelist Terry Southern and directed the film.

DeNiro honored by AFM

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Robert DeNiro has been made an honorary member of the American Federation of Musicians for his portrayal of a jazz saxophonist in "New York, New York."

The musical drama focuses on the big band era of the 1930s.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

Glenn Yarbrough and The Limelighters with the new Kingston Trio will present a concert in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8:30 p.m. Monday. Tickets are on sale at the Music Center box office and Mutual agencies.

Renovated hall proves a hit

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Philharmonic has triumphantly reopened a new, improved Avery Fisher Hall after a crash five-month, $6.4million construction effort to rebuild an auditorium judged an acoustical disaster.

Both a Monday night preview performance for construction workers and the Tuesday night official opening proved that very few halls have the kind of detail acoustician Dr. Cyril M. Harris has given the structure.

The renovations were undertaken because of repeated complaints by critics and concert-goers about poor acoustic qualities since the main concert hall in Manhattan's Lincoln Center complex opened 14 years ago. Once dominated by curved, rambling tiers, the structure's interior was totally rebuilt and now is almost starkly rectangular.

Tuesday night's sold-out Pension Fund benefit performance conducted by Pierre Boulez was a decided success. Even orchestra members said they were pleased with the sound.

The program consisted of Brahms' Violin Concerto and Stravinsky's "The Firebird."

The hall came close to not opening because of a threatened strike of union musicians.

DANCING STAR — Baayork Lee (center) gets raves from the audiences with her portrayal of Connie Wong in "A Chorus Line" at the Shubert Theater in Los Angeles. She is also dance captain and assistant to director Michael Bennett, who designed the choreography.

Italy trio at UCLA

The Trio di Milano from Italy will present a program of Schubert, Brahms and Mendelssohn in Schoenberg Hall, UCLA, at 4 p.m. Nov. 7. The concert is the second event in the 1976-77 Chamber Music Series.

The trio will open the program with Schubert's Sonatensatz in B Flat Major. Also presented will be the Trio in C Major, (Brahms), and the Trio in D Minor, (Mendelssohn).

Members of the Trio di Milano are Bruno Canino, piano; Cesare Ferraresi, violin; and Rocco Filippini, cello.

Organized in the spring of 1968, the trio spent a full year in intensive practice before launching a successful concert career.

Each of the members is a noted musician. Ferraresi has won both the Paganini Prize and the International Competition at Geneva. Filippini has won the Guilde du Disque at the Geneva Competition. Canino is a gifted composer as well as pianist, having captured a prize at the Paris Biennale for a chamber music-concerto.

Garrison to present Simon's 'Plaza Suite'

The professional road company of Neil Simon's comedy hit, "Plaza Suite" will give performances in Garrison Theater, Claremont, at 8 o'clock tonight and Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

In the cast are six stars of three popular soap operas. They are Emily McLaughlin (Nurse Jessie Brewer) and Jim Sikking (Dr. James Hobart) of "General Hospital"; John Lupton (Tom Horton, Jr.) of "Days of Our Lives," and Tom Hallick (Brad Eliot), Jaime Lyn Bauer (Lauralee Brooks), and Jeanne Cooper (Kaye Chancellor) of "The Young and the Restless."

Historically, bills of short plays were dismal failures on Broadway, audiences preferring full-length single plays. Early in the 1960's Simon, already hailed as a promising playwright, continued a trend started by Noel Coward and Terence Rattingan to break this jinx. He added in "Plaza Suite" the new dimension of three plays in one setting. The result was an unprecedented run of 1,097 appearances between February, 1968, and October, 1970.

There will be an opportunity after the Garrison show for the audience to greet the stars and obtain their autographs.

Tickets are available through the box office, 626-4523, and through Mutual and Liberty agencies. Prices are $9.50, $8.50, $7.50 and $6.50.

Artist plans open house

Claremont artist Ning Yeh will hold open house and give demonstrations at his studio at 152 Turningbend Drive, Claremont, from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Yeh, best known as a horse painter, will introduce his new nature series: Landscape, Flower & Bird and Four Gentlemen. He will also appear on Broadway's "East Meets West" show on Channel 4 at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Yeh was born in mainland China and moved to Taiwan at the age of two. He started his artistic training under the guidance of his mother when he was seven. In 1969 he came to this country on a scholarship and earned his master's degree at Cal State Fresno and has passed the qualifying examinations for his doctorate at Claremont Graduate School.

Yeh has been giving demonstrations of his horse painting at the Los Angeles County Fair since 1972, and he has had one-man shows in Los Angeles, San Diego, Fresno, Santa Barbara and other Southern California cities. He teaches art classes in colleges and adult programs in Orange, Whittier, Newport Beach, Pasadena and Claremont.

The artist's father, Gen. Yeh, is an internationally known horse painter whose works have been presented as state gifts of the Republic of China to many foreign dignitaries including President Eisenhower and President Johnson.

Channel expansion hangup bugs citizen's band buyer

By INK DIPPER

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ink Dipper, KYZ-3916, is the handle of the editor of The CB Times-Journal.)

Expansion of the Citizen's Band from 23 to 40 channels has stopped some prospective CB buyers dead in their tracks.

The new 40-channel rigs won't be on the market until early January, and manufacturers are using a variety of approaches to sell out inventories of 23-channel models.

Most are doing one of two things — either offering to convert 23-channel models to 40-channel capability or cutting prices on present stock without offering conversion.

Hy-Gain was one of the first companies offering to "retrofit" recently purchased models, and it estimates that adding the new channels will cost about $20 per radio. Most conversion plans are similar to that.

Officials for companies offering retrofitting plans say they want to sell a product that will not be obsolete in a few months.

But companies not offering to convert CBs don't want the expected headaches of setting up temporary conversion facilities.

And they see a risk in converting because no one is certain how the Federal Communications Commission will react to converted CBs.

When the expansion was announced, the FCC added new electronic filtering requirements to lessen possible television reception interference.

Manufacturers are now trying — and not always successfully — to gain FCC approval for new 40-channel units under the toughened requirements. And gaining approval for retrofitted rigs, some manufacturers feared, would be an even steeper hill to climb.

A prospective CB buyer can find slashed prices on radios that can't be retrofitted, with some models selling for half the regular price.

The radios won't be obsolete in the sense that they can't be used, but a CBer who buys one of them won't have the freedom of 17 new channels. Most CBers, finding channels crowded in the lower 23, will want a radio with 40 channels.

An exception to that is the trucker, who relies on channels 9 and 19. Channel 9 is the emergency channel and channel 19 is the trucking channel, and you don't need a 40-channel model to operate on them. Manufacturers are betting, if they don't offer conversion, that the truckers will buy out a big part of the inventories.

Besides retrofitting and price cuts, manufacturers are offering other deals to lure in customers for 23-channel units. One manufacturer, Sharp, will replace each radio it sells from July 26 to Jan. 31 with a "comparable featured" 40-channel radio. The replacement cost will be $30.

Another company, Hadnic, U.S.A., will allow customers buying its 23-channel units to purchase 40-channel sets at half price without having to return the 23-channel sets.

If you want to buy a CB, you can go in a lot of directions to find a deal, but make sure you know what you are getting into. If the salesman says that there is a retrofit or replacement offer being made by the manufacturer, get it in writing.

The companies with the offers should be giving out certificates guaranteeing it.

And if the certificate has to be mailed to the manufacturer for the retrofit or replacement, make a photostatted copy of it just in case your radio is lost in the expected shuffle.

Oratorio society to start

The Valley Oratorio Society will begin rehearsals for its annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" in the choir room of Bethel Congregational Church, 536 N. Euclid Ave., Ontario, at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

All persons interested in singing the oratorio are invited to attend.

The "Messiah" will be presented in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, at 2:30 p.m. Dec. 5. The soloists, chorus and orchestra will be under the dirction of Peter Hettinga.

Jury foreman steps down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The foreman of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury has stepped down from his post because of poor health.

Harry H. Greenwald, 66, resigned his chairmanship Wednesday and was replaced by Hugh L. Henshaw, 58, of Long Beach.

Superior Court Judge Robert Wenke made the replacement after polling grand jurors on their preference.

wandering with woody

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

I was on vacation last week and when I got my Friday newspaper at home I discovered that I had been cut in mid thought. I really have enough trouble trying to keep my thoughts together under the very best of circumstances without being edited with a knife in our composing room. The error, however, was probably mine for not writing for the space available.

So I'd like to get back to my conversation with George Hone, bartender at the Castaways in Pomona, who shall probably forever be "Felix" to me. The play was "The Odd Couple" and we closed the short-lived Upland Playhouse with it in '71. Anyway, Felix, I mean George, has now gotten involved with a Chino theatrical group which is planning to open in December with "Broadway." According to George, it sounds as if it will be a dinner theatre setting. If so it will be good news for those of us who enjoy this type of entertainment.

Josef Benz is working hard to convert the former St. Charles Grill in Pomona into a Bavarian restaurant. The formal name of the place will be Alpine Haus Bavarian Restaurant. Joe hopes to open in four or five weeks.

I dropped in on him the other day and found him up to his shortsleeves in carpentry work. He envisions providing a European foods delicatessen in the back of the place in addition to a full menu restaurant and, at noon, quick service lunches. He's planning to have entertainment on weekends . . . a polka band, what else?

He has a few hurdles to clear yet, but Joe is determined that happy sounds replace the past three years' silence in this once-grand old landmark on Holt Ave.

Saturday is the Grand Opening of Pomona's newest Der Wienerschnitzel, at 1568 North Indian Hill. Manager Toni McLenaghan and crew are expecting a lot of people to take advantage of their 20¢ hot dog offer that day, and are getting many sign-ups for the drawing Saturday morning. Several prizes will be given the lucky winners, including a Vespa gasoline-powered bicycle as grand prize. For additional details, see the ad on page 29.

Country music artist Rose Maddox is coming to the Band Box in Montclair Saturday night. A professional performer since the age of 11, Rose Maddox has enjoyed, and is still enjoying, a successful recording career spanning nearly three decades and covering over half a dozen labels. At one time, while signed with Columbia, she held three separate recording contracts simultaneously. She has toured and performed throughout the U.S. and Europe, and she's earned top country female awards in the U.S., Europe and New Zealand. So, if country music's your thing, look in on the Band Box Saturday night.

I received a call today from a friend wanting to place a classified ad in hopes of finding a place for a band to practice. I offered what I thought might be a possible solution, but she had already explored that idea and found it wanting. Her problem touches home for me because I find myself, at this very instant, listening to the persistent sounds of a budding band in my own garage! My son has this thing about music and has found several others who share his enthusiasm. And they ARE enthusiastic! I must say that I want to support them in their strivings, as I'm sure Barbara Foster does. But the volume of electronic sound produced by a band is not compatible with a residential neighborhood. In my own case, I feel a little better since hearing band sounds coming from another garage on our street! And now, since Barbara's call, I'm wondering just how many budding groups there are out there in basements or garages in the Valley?

I'd like to acknowledge another communication I received this week. I'd prefer to do it over the telephone, but the reader included neither phone number nor address in her letter.

Her complaint was a wrong price in an ad in last week's Weekend! section. Unfortunately, a price did not get changed as the advertiser requested and it caused some bad feelings. For this I am sorry. But what a few people saw as a demonstration of "corporate greed" was merely human error. We have, by the way, thousands of opportunities to make errors every day (phone numbers, addresses, prices, names, etc.) but we try to take advantage of as few of them as possible!

NEWS 'N NOTES

. . . There's been a couple of management changes in area restaurants in the past few weeks. Bob Rogers is the new food and beverage manager at Beef 'n Barrel restaurant in Claremont. He replaces Jim Haidet, who plans to go into business for himself. A change at Ice House Canyon Lodge on Mt. Baldy sees Frank Bauer moving up with the company which owns the restaurant and being replaced as manager by Steve Frazier.

. . . And speaking of Ice House, "Crushed Ice" opens there this evening for a two-night engagement. They are a show band group, playing and singing current favorites as well as music of the '50s.

. . . The long-awaited big screen TV was installed at The Castle last week. I haven't seen it in operation yet but Lisa Farelli says the picture is almost movie sharp . . . great for sporting events. (The $3.95 prime rib there is quite good, by the way.)

. . . Country music sounds are coming from Uncle Ned's these days. Don Knight, manager of the 365 Central, Upland, place says Barbara Griffin is featured in a group called the "Country Gentlemen" Wednesdays through Fridays.

Consumers want the truth, not political exhortations

By JOHN CUNIFFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes you wonder if ordinary Americans appreciate all the effort being made in their behalf by the important people who shoulder the burden of running this economy of ours.

Very often the people appear to be ingrates. Certainly they are thoughtless, unappreciative, unresponsive. Otherwise they would exude confidence and go out and buy up a storm. They aren't, as you know.

"Although Americans have been told time and again that the nation's economy is improving, many seem unwilling to believe the rhetoric and statistics and think the economy is getting worse," the interpreters of a bank survey lamented.

All the big banks are telling the people that things are going to be better. Official Washington is also. And, true, some of the statistics are still pointing that way. But the people just won't believe.

In the survey from which the quotation above was excerpted, only one in five adults felt the economy was better now than it was six months ago, which amounts to a disdainful contradiction of what these people have been told while the economists and some of the politicians and some of the numbers tell the country that things will be getting better soon, the people apparently aren't listening. They're worrying about inflation and unemployment.

"Almost 45 per cent of the respondents said inflation is the country's biggest worry, while close to 40 per cent said the main problem is joblessness, the interpreters of the bank survey relate.

One is inclined to wonder why these ordinary people just can't grasp the message in the earnest promises of economists that both these situations will be improved, notwithstanding the failure of past promises.

But then suspicion enters your thinking. Who knows more about inflation the human aspect and unemployment than the people whose jobs are threatened and whose paychecks are deflated? Which are the experts? Who should listen, who give advice?

In each instance, it seems, the people are the expert witnesses, and the alleged experts are the ones who should be listening. Can wrist slaps from a fatherly economist or exhortations by a President change the situation?

The truth is that the ordinary American consumer, whose spending accounts for two-thirds of this economy, makes his and her own decisions, and these decisions are not the product of any sophisticated theory or analysis.

Instead, the ordinary consumer's insight and command comes from an uncomplicated source, the wallet. One cannot spend what one cannot afford. One does not take chances when employment and future income are endangered.

The experts in the American economy are the consumers. They are the big spenders or, depending upon their perception of events, they are the small spenders. They generally relay upon their own perceptions rather than on those of the "experts."

This state of affairs is often overlooked by those who study reports, analyze numbers, write speeches, forecast events, make promises and believe they guide the economy. Because it is, there is often a lot of head scratching in important places.

Consider the bewilderment of the economists who predict a better than 4 per cent growth in the real Gross National Product in the second half of the year, and follow it with this comment, again excerpted from printed material:

"However, according to ..., the growth rate may not be strong enough to suit the desires of today's consumer."

Now what would get those consumers excited would be a little more Adam Smith, say a price cut or, in the case of banks, a little dip in the cost of borrowing money.

That's what those ingrate consumers understand and appreciate.

Opening lead — K ♣

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

South bid his hand like there was no tomorrow, but the way the cards lay he was sure to make his six-heart contract.

He started out perfectly. Clubs were opened and continued. He ruffed the second club and went over to dummy with the king of diamonds. Then he led a heart to his queen.

With hearts breaking 2-2 and the finesse working, how was South able to get himself set?

It wasn't too difficult. All it required was a little bit of misdirection by British internationalist Jonathon Cansino, who sat West. Jonathon dropped the jack of hearts under the queen. Jonathon had seen that his jack of trumps was worthless. South had bid a lot as it was and surely held a six-card heart suit.

The false card worked like a charm. South decided that East had started with three hearts and it was up to him to get back to dummy to finesse a second time. The only way to get there was to ruff a diamond. He tried to do that, but East overruffed.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know what the standard American bidding system is.

It is the name given to the bidding methods taught and played by practically all American experts. Each expert has his own variations, but basically the system is the best there is.

Joyce Brothers

Love out window

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been married three years and while nothing's really wrong, I have to confess it's not what I expected. Now I understand why some of my friends decided not to go the marriage route. My husband and I argue a lot and I think love is going out the window. We try to do things together to make the perfect family scene but it sin't working. We're frustrated and fed up most of the time. I used to think marriages were made in heaven. Now I don't believe in heaven or marriage. I'd really like out, but how? — F.E.

Dear F.E.: Before you look for a way out, take time to analyze what's wrong and try to make some changes in your marriage. If you run now, you're apt to spend the rest of your life repeating all the same mistakes.

Many couples enter marriage with totally unrealistic expectations. Emily Mudd, a psychiatrist and specialist in family life, says that Americans constantly delude themselves into thinking that "ideal patterns of marital behavior" are realistic, when they're not, and that marriage provides some kind of "mystical fulfillment," when it cannot. A marriage is only as mature as the two people involved in it.

All marriages go through a continuing series of crises and solutions, but no one crises need sink any marriage. It's good that you and your husband can argue because if you learn to really listen, you can learn. If you're just repeating the same old debates, then you're not listening and exploring possible solutions.

Don't compare your marriage with anyone else's. Each marriage is separate and as precious as you want to make it. Don't throw it away without giving it a fair try. This involves careful thought and work.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I can't understand why my husband won't join the car pool in our neighborhood. It would save us a lot of money and then I could use the car in the daytime. As it is, we're going to have to buy another car just because he's adamant about not sharing a ride. I think this is impractical, unreasonable, selfish and wasteful. We argue about it a lot, but I'm getting nowhere. — T.F.

Dear T.F.: Some individuals just can't seem to adjust to car pools. Often they feel so strongly about it, that they are willing to stand in line for a bus or train, rather than join the neighbors in an automobile. Usually, those who avoid car pools as they would a contagious disease are people who have to gear themselves up for any social encounter.

If social contact produces tension and strain for your husband he may be better off using public transportation or driving alone as long as he, and the country, can afford it. He should also try to analyze why contact with others causes such anxiety.

Some people adapt easily to car-pooling and feel good because they've found new companions, while others find it almost unbearable.

The pyschological problems of car-pooling involve a loss of personal control over the mobility and time of all the participants. Many people can't stand being interdependent. They may have been taught that total independence is a sign of maturity. What they should realize is that no one is really independent.

Don't argue, but try to understand him and try to adjust.

Perhaps you have noticed the words "patent No. 12345" or "patent pending," for example, marked on many of the things you buy and use.

These are notices to inform us that the product has been patented by the inventor and may not be copied by others.

Patents are granted by the government to inventors. A person who wants to patent a new invention must submit a description of his invention to the Patent Office and pay a fee.

If the idea is found to be something really new and useful, the Patent Office issues a patent.

When a patent is granted, the inventor has the sole right to make, use, and sell his invention for 17 years. No one is allowed to imitate or use his idea during that time without paying him.

When the 17 years are over, anyone may profit from it. The patented article must be marked with its patent number. The term "patent pending" means that an application for a patent is on file at the Patent Office.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send you question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I recently started a workshop in the utility room of our house and began to fix things myself that I would not have dared to try a few months ago. While I have bought a number of do-it-yourself books, I find myself constantly confused by the terms that are used. One example is in the matter of wood and sheet metal screws. Is there some easy way to tell the difference between them?

A. — Yes. Sheet metal screws are threaded right up to the head. Wood screws are threaded only about two-thirds of the way.

---

Q. — Four years ago, I put up gypsum board walls in our attic. Everything came out fine, better than I expected, except that now I notice some of the nails have started to pop. A neighbor has shown me how to correct the condition, but what he didn't know was how to prevent the trouble in the first place. I am especially concerned because I soon expect to do a similar job in our garage.

A. — I got this advice from a professional contractor: Simply hammer in two nails next to each other at every spot where you ordinarily would use one nail.

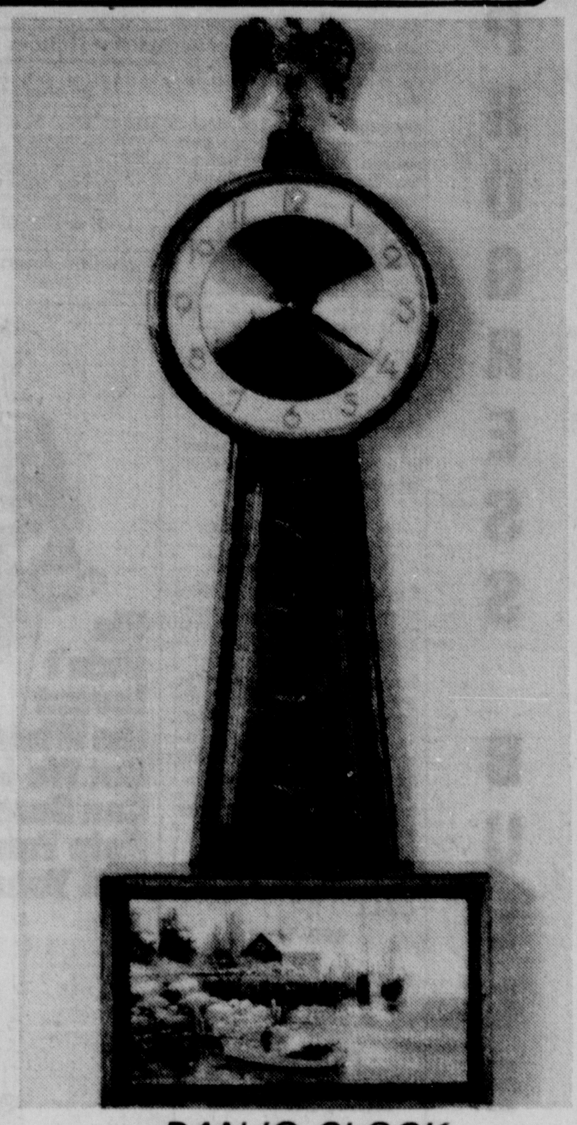
Q. — I bought some plywood in a local lumber yard and made three cabinets with it. I used a stain on the plywood. Some parts of the grain came out very dark, some very light. My wife and I have decided to leave it as it is, since the effect isn't entirely displeasing. However, I have been wondering what would happen if I had a similar project in the future and wanted to get an even stain. What did I do wrong?

A. — Nothing. It is likely that you bought fir plywood, which is the kind you usually get in a lumber yard when you do not specify what the face of the wood should be. Fir plywood usually is the least expensive of the plywoods and is very strong, but there is a wide variation of the summer and winter wood of the growth rings. When the wood is stained, the soft portions absorb more of the stain and come out considerably darker than the hard portions, resulting in a contrasting grain pattern. To alleviate this condition, manufacturers have put out sealers made especially for fir. When the clear sealer is applied, it enables the stain to take more evenly. There is a white sealer of the same type which is used when the final finish is to be paint rather than a transparent coating.



BANJO CLOCK

Do-it-yourself

Banjo clock scores high

This decorator-inspired wall clock is patterned after the ever-popular American musical instrument, the banjo. Just imagine this handsome piece of modern Americana gracing your decor whether it's traditional, Early American or contemporary. Measuring 24" tall and built entirely of pine, this simple project is a natural for the do-it-yourselfer.

The Banjo Clock pictured here, is built with a minimum of tools. A saw, drill, and screwdriver are all you need. Our easy-to-follow plan includes step-by-step instructions, full-size traceable parts, construction photos and a complete materials list. Just trace, saw and assemble . . . it's that easy!

To obtain the Banjo Clock pattern No. 582, send $2.00 (includes 1st class postage & handling) by cash, check or money order. (To obtain our new book, U-BILD, PATTERNS FOR BETTER LIVING, send $1.25.) Address all orders to Steve Ellingson, c/o Pomona Progress-Bulletin Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, California 91409.

HANDY TIP: When sawing, always cut on the outside of the marked line. It's easier to take the excess away, than trying to work with a too-small piece. (If you have a Do-It-Yourself question, send it to Steve Ellingson at the above address.).

'Miniclimate' saves

Landscaping to develop a "miniclimate" in and around a house saves money on utility bills as well as saving energy. Trees, shrubs, evergreens and other green plantings help reduce temperatures in summer and make for pleasant summer enjoyment. In winter, they act as windbreaks and natural insulators to keep cold away. Tests have shown that the outdoor temperature can be as much as eight degrees cooler in shaded areas, beneath trees and plants, than in unshaded areas.

That could make a lot of difference in air conditioning use over the period of summer. The American Association of Nurserymen points out that planting for climate control not only makes the property more valuable; it saves money.

Colorful bulbs

Tulip by any other name

Everyone knows what a tulip looks like, or a hyacinth or a daffodil. But what about an allium or an anemone, or a chionodoxa? These are only three of a wide variety of spring bulb flowers which are not so well known but which bloom from early February through May and provide a rainbow of colors in the spring garden.

They're among the first to bloom and they complement the more familiar spring flowers. These miscellaneous bulbs come in all shapes and sizes, from four inches to four feet high and from the purest white to the deepest purple. They can be used almost anywhere — in beds, rock gardens, along borders, or under tulips and daffodils — and they are eary to plant.

As with other varieties of the more common spring flowers, they must be planted in the fall before deep frost hardens the ground, in order for them to bloom in the spring. And, once the bulbs have been tucked into the earth roots begin to form, shoots begin to grow, and finally months later flowers bloom; some even do well when snow falls and temperatures drop.

It should be remembered, however, that flowering times are affected by various climatic conditions and there usually will be year-to-year variations. With an early spring, for example, the bulbs may flower a week or two earlier; with a late spring, the reverse will be true.

The area in which you live also will affect the bloom period.

With a minimum of planning you can select bulbs that will flower at the same time, or in succession, to create the kind of effect you want. For help in making this selection, your favorite bulb supplier will be glad to answer topical questions.

Remember that it is essential to plant all bulbs in soil that drains well. If your soil has a great deal of clay content, a good idea is to add sand, peat or vermiculite to a depth of 12 to 18 inches. If the soil is too sandy, add peat or compost.

All bulbs contain their first season's food supply, but fertilizing is recommended to foster future growth. Choose a high phosphorous and potash mix, bonemeal or a good all-purpose fertilizer. For best results, work the fertilizer into the soil during the fall planting season and again when shoots appear, to nourish the bulbs for subsequent years.

When planning your garden, keep in mind that each one of the miscellaneous bulbs has its own special characteristics.

Allium is a glamorous cousin of the onion and garlic family, but happily has a sweeter scent. They are diverse in form, height and color, and all are quite bright and decorative. The blooms are usually round and covered with tiny flowers. For planting, cover the bulbs three times their own depth with soil. Good spots are borders at the base of shrubbery, while the smaller varieties are ideal grouped in rock gardens. The Allium Gigantium are magnificently large, showy flowers that deserve their own place in the garden. Site these beauties in special locations as they are real eye-catchers.

Other favorite allium include: Aflatunense (deep purple, flowers in late May); Christophii (light purple, flowers in early June), Karataviense (lilac pink, flowers the end of May), Moly (yellow, flowers in early June) and Oreophilum (red, flowers in early June).

The Anemone is among the brightest of the spring flowers, with many different varieties available; they vary greatly in appearance from the early spring-flowering, low-growing species, with their delicate rayed flowers to the large blossomed florists' types. Anemone Blanda is the earliest blooming of all the beautiful and hardy Anemones; it has small, starry flowers, and grows about three or four inches tall, flowering in March and early April. They should be planted in four-inch deep clusters in rock gardens and borders, or naturalized in shrubs and trees.

Most popular Anemone Blanda consist of Super Mixed (rose-purple), Radar (rose), Rosea (rose) and White Splendor (white).

The Chionodoxa, or Glory of the Snow, produces starry skyblue flowers with a snowy center, from late February to early April. These four- to six-inch stemmed flowers are very effective planted in masses in lawns, banks, borders or around the perimeter of shrubbery and trees. They should be planted four inches deep and about three inches apart and as long as they do well you need not disturb them.

The Crocus is one of the hardiest blub flowers and one of the easiest to grow and provides the gardener with an enormous selection of colors, varied shapes and sizes.

"Selling's a Cinch in the Want Ads"

You've heard a sure thing described as a "lead pipe cinch". That's how newspaper readers feel about results they obtain from the Want Ads.

When you pick up the phone and dial our Classified department to sell your still valuable but not now used items, it's a cinch you are going to find buyers. Very often the articles will be sold on the first call. That's because people look to the Want Ads for good bargains in furniture, appliances, toys, bikes and trikes, sewing machines and musical instruments.

Realtors, automotive dealers and Business Services specialists find Classified a cinch when it comes to selling their goods and expertise.

Get in on a sure thing, whether you are buying or selling. Use the Want Ads.
